CZAR ANSWERS WORKINGMEN BY TROOPS KILLING HUNDREDS; HE NOW FACES INSURRECTION

M. WITTE MAY BE DICTATOR

Member of the Emperor's Household Says He Must Now End War With Japan and Give Russia a Constitutional Government or Lose His Head. One Regiment of Infantry Refuses to Fire on the People—Crowd Appeals to the Others, but Is Met With Volleys or Charges by the Cavalry—Women and Children, as Well as Men, Shot Down by the Soldiers—Workmen Attack Army Officers and Strip Them of Their Swords.

[Associated Press Cable to The Gazette.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 22.—This has been a day of unspeakable horror in St. Petersburg. The strikers of yesterday, goaded to desperation by a day of violence and bloodshed, are in a state of open insurrection against the government. A condition almost bordering on civil war exists in the terror-stricken Russian capital. The city is under martial law, with Prince Vasilchikoff as commander of over 50,000 of the emperor's crack guards.

Troops are bivouacking in the streets tonight, and at various places on the Nevsky Prospect, the main thoroughfare of the city. On the island of Vassili Ostrov and in the industrial sections infuriated men have thrown up barricades which they are holding. The empress dowager hastily sought safety at Tsarskoe Selo, where Emperor Nicholas II. has been living. There was a rumor tonight that he had fled to Peterhof, on the Gulf of Finland.

Minister of the Interior Sviatopolk-Mirsky presented to his majesty last night the invitation of the workmen to appear at the winter palace this afternoon and receive their petition, but the emperor's advisers already had taken a decision to show a firm and resolute front, and the emperor's answer to 100,000 workmen trying to make their way to the palace square today was a solid array of troops who met them with rifle, bayonet and sabre.

Father Gopon Miraculously Escapes.

The priest Gopon, the leader and idol of the men, in his golden vestments, holding aloft the cross and marching at the head of thousands of workmen through the Nerva gate, miraculously escaped a volley which laid low half a hundred persons. The figures of the total number killed or wounded here, at the Moscow gate, at various bridges and islands and at the winter palace vary. The best estimate is 500, although there are exaggerated figures placing the number as high as 5,000. Many men were accompanied by their wives and children, and in the confusion, which left no time for discrimination, the latter shared the fate of the men.

The troops, with the exception of a single regiment of infantry, which threw down its arms, remained loyal and obeyed orders. But the blood which crimsoned the snow has fired the brains and passions of the strikers and turned women as well as men into wild beasts, and the cry of the infuriated populace is for vengeance.

The sympathy of the middle classes is with the workmen.

Managed Affair Like Genius.

If Father Gopon, the master mind of the movement, aimed at open revolution, he managed the affair like a genius to break the faith of the people in "The Little Father," who they were convinced and whom Father Gopon had taught them to believe would right their wrongs and redress their grievances. Gorky, the Russian novelist, expresses the opinion that today's work will break this faith of the people in the emperor. He said this evening:

"Today inaugurated revolution in Russia. The emperor's prestige will be irrevocably shattered by the shedding of innocent blood. He has alienated himself forever from his people. Gopon taught the workmen to believe that an appeal direct to the 'Little Father' would be heeded. They have been undeceived. Gopon is now convinced that peaceful means have failed and that the only remedy is force. The first blood has been shed, but more will follow. It is now the people against the oppressors, and the battle will be fought to the bitter end."

Military in Control.

The military authorities had a firm grip on every artery in the city. At daybreak guards' regiments, cavalry and infantry held every bridge across the frozen Neva, the network of canals which interlaces the city and the gates leading from the industrial section, while in the palace square, at the storm center, were massed dragoon regiments, infantry and Cossacks of the guards.

Barred from the bridges and gates, men, women and children crossed the frozen river and canals on the ice by twos and threes, hurrying to the palace square, where they were sure the emperor would be present to hear them. But the street approaches to the square were cleared by volleys and Cossack charges. Men and women, infuriated to frenzy by the loss of loved ones, cursed the soldiers while they retreated. Men harangued the crowds, telling them that the emperor had foiled them and that the time had come to act. Men began to build barricades in the Nevsky Prospect and at other points, using any material that came to hand, and even chopping down telegraph poles. Fighting meantime continued at various places, soldiers volleying and charging the mob. The whole city was in a state of panic. Women were running through the streets seeking lost members of their families. Several barricades were carried by the troops.

Czar's Officers Are Mobbed.

Toward 8 o'clock in the evening the crowds, exhausted, began to disperse, leaving the military in possession. As they retreated up the Nevsky Prospect the workmen put out all the lights. The little chapel at the Neyra gate was wrecked. On the Kaminostov island all the lights were extinguished. Every officer wearing the uniform of the emperor who was found alone was mobbed. A general was killed on the Nicholas bridge, and a dozen officers were seized, stripped of their epaulets and deprived of their swords.

It is rumored tonight that M. Witte will be apointed dictator tomorrow, but the report is not confirmed. The authorities, while they seem to realize the magnitude of the crisis with which the dynasty and the autocracy are confronted on account of today's events, apparently are paralyzed for the moment. An official statement was promised at midnight, at which hour it was announced that it had been postponed until tomorrow. Intense indignation is bound to be aroused all over Russia. The workmen and revolutionists expect news from Moscow and other big centers, where the troops are not of the same class as the guards regiments of St. Petersburg.

Emperor May Lose Head.

A member of the emperor's household is quoted as saying today that this conflict will end the war with Japan and that Russia will have a constitution or Emperor Nicholas will lose his head. The Warsaw & Baltic railroad is reported to have been torn up for a mile and a half, but the damage is said to have been repaired.

There are rumors of trouble in Finland and disaffection of the troops.

With darkness it was feared the mob might begin to loot and pillage and even burn; but beyond the breaking of a few windows in the Nevsky Prospect and the pillaging of fruit shops, little disaster was reported. Most of the theaters were closed, but at the Peoples Palace, which was open, two Liberals attempted to harangue the audience, proposing at the close that the audience testify to their sympathy with their fallen brothers. The orators were promptly arrested, but the audience walked out.

By midnight the sound of firing had ceased, except on Vassili Ostrov island, where the troops met a renewed demonstration with several volleys and 30 workmen were killed and 20 wounded. The correspondent was present during the fighting on the island.

Brandished Poor Weapons.

The strikers, driven from the river front, had gathered in front of the union headquarters out of sight of the soldiers. Buzzing like a nest of angry hornets, a hundred men brandished handleless table knives secured from some junk shop, which were the only weapons seen in the hands of the strikers during the day. Others swarmed up poles and cut down telegraph, telephone and electric light wires, which they strung from lamp post to lamp post across the street to break up charges of cavalry. At first none of the leaders seemed to have any plans. Suddenly two men appeared carrying ladders, and others pushed up with more ladders, timber and lumber from incomplete buildings and with old sleighs. In the twinkling of an eye a substantial barricade had been constructed, bound together with wires and ropes. On these water was poured, which immediately froze. As a last contribution Christmas trees were added to the pile and the crowd rushed to repeat the process at the other end of the block. Meanwhile others were bringing on brick and breaking them for missiles.

When the troops advanced the strikers lined the barricades and offered what resistance they could, but while half of the infantry rested their rifles on a barricade and volleyed, the others demolished the

ENTERED HOME BY PORCH ROOF

Residence of Wilson A. Shaw Robbed of $1,000 Worth of Jewelry.

FAMILY WAS AT DINNER TABLE

The residence of Wilson A. Shaw, the well-known banker, at Morewood and Forbes street, was entered by burglars last night at the dinner hour and about $1,000 worth of jewelry taken. The thieves "jimmied" the second story window, ransacked the bedrooms and made their escape through the bathroom window, climbing down the porch.

The family went to dinner about 6 o'clock. About 40 minutes later Mr. Shaw went upstairs and noticed a draft in the hallway. As he entered the bedroom he found the window up and dresser drawers open. A hasty investigation showed the house had been robbed. Mr. Shaw entered the bathroom, and found the window raised and tracks in the snow on the porch roof, where the burglars had departed.

Superintendent of Detectives McQuaide was notified and he detailed Detectives McGough and Lally to make an investigation. The officers found the burglars had climbed to the porch roof, forced the front window and entered. They went through the dresser drawers and took a lady's ring, set with two diamonds, each weighing two karats, a pearl brooch, a small shopping bag that contained $20, several small rings and a lady's watch. The burglars went through the two front bedrooms. They departed from the house by way of the bathroom and climbed down the porch at the side of the house unnoticed.

The robbery has all the marks of having been committed by a professional "second-story man." It was done at an hour of the evening, when it is customary for this class of thieves to work. But whether there was more than one thief in the house is not known. From the tracks on the roof it is thought there was but one burglar in the bedroom.

The police have not been troubled with many burglaries this winter. There have been a few robberies committed by second-story men in sections of the city where the police have large beats to cover. Superintendent Wallace has contended there are not enough policemen in Oakland and East End to protect the property properly. He recently asked to have 50 extra men appointed, but the ordinance was cut down to 25. The detectives and plain clothes men were sent through the East End and in the downtown district to pick up every suspicious looking person.

FOREIGNERS ARE WARNED TO ABANDON INTERESTS

The Diplomatic Body at Tangier Is Admonished to Take Temporary Precaution.

[Associated Press Cable to The Gazette.]

TANGIER, Jan. 22.—The dispatch of a strong punitive expedition under Kaid Thergui to the Tangier, Alcazar and Uzilla region has occurred, according to a notice to the diplomatic body in a note addressed to Sid El Torrse.

His excellency warns the ministers that foreign subjects ought temporarily to abandon their interests in the districts where punishment will have to be inflicted, and only return when order has been restored in the country and a law-abiding spirit prevails. The general belief is that foreign ministers will pay no heed to the note.

The French mission is reported to be continuing its overland journey without incident, and is expected to reach Fez at the end of the week.

ADJUSTMENT BOARD SITS: FINAL SETTLEMENT TODAY

The situation remains as it was at the conclusion of yesterday's conference.

The board of adjustment of the trainmen's union was in session today, at which were present P. H. Morrissey, grand master of the brotherhood, and E. G. Lee, the vice grand master. Beyond the statement that the board discussed the situation, nothing was given out for publication.

FRANK CROKER DIES OF INJURIES

The Automobile Collision in Florida Proved Fatal to the New Yorker.

HE TRIED TO AVOID ACCIDENT

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

DAYTONA, FLA., Jan. 22.—As the result of injuries received in the accident yesterday afternoon on the beach speed course here, Frank Croker died early this morning. His mother and sister are hurrying here on a special train.

The killing of Croker and his chauffeur are the first fatalities which have occurred since racing began in Florida, and the sad beginning of what promised to be the most successful winter meeting of automobilists in the history of the sport in the United States has thrown a gloom over the assemblage of prominent motorists who are here from the north.

M. F. Stanley, who is staying at Mildred villa, at Ormond, the motor cyclist who is credited with being the cause of the accident, also had a leg broken, but is not otherwise seriously injured.

Spectators who saw the collision between the machines on the beach say that it was the unselfish heroism of Croker in trying to avoid Stanley which cost the New York boy his life. The long experience which Croker had had in driving motor cars at full speed had taught him that to attempt to make a quick turn at the rate at which he was traveling would almost surely result in a serious accident, but he took a desperate chance, and by doing so brought about his own death and that of the mechanic who was with him in the car.

As Croker was being carried to the hotel he recovered consciousness for a moment and murmured faintly to those who were bearing him in a cot, inquiring as to the condition of his companion. He was assured that Raoul was all right, and, apparently much satisfied, again closed his eyes and relapsed into unconsciousness.

KNOX WILL GET 500 TELEGRAMS

Each Member of Philadelphia Church to Make Appeal Against Smoot.

TO KEEP WIRES BUSY TODAY

The Pittsburgh Gazette Bureau, Press Building, PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 22.

Senator Philander C. Knox's desk in the United States senate is destined to be deluged tomorrow and possibly for several days to come with telegrams from Philadelphia urging him to array himself against Reed Smoot. This will be the result of a meeting in the Northminster Presbyterian church tonight at which Mormonism was riddled with verbal hot shot.

Five hundred persons and more attended this meeting, which was addressed by Mrs. W. D. White and Mrs. Frederic Schoff, both of whom have battled hard against Smoot for some time. And at the conclusion of their addresses the pastor of the church, the Rev. Joseph W. Cochran, asked everyone present to personally send a telegram to Mr. Knox asking him to work against Smoot. The assemblage, both men and women, were loud in their promises to do so, and the unanimity made it apparent that the telegraph offices at Washington will have a hard time tomorrow handling the junior senator's telegrams.

Besides these individual telegrams Mr. Knox will receive one in which the congregation as a whole denounces Mormonism and asks for Smoot's expulsion.

MORE VALUABLES FOUND.

Customs Collector Will Investigate Unexpected Discoveries at Mr. Chadwick's Residence.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 22.—United States Customs Collector Leach has found valuable furs and laces belonging to Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick in the Chadwick home on Euclid avenue. Mr. Leach is going to learn whether duty has been paid upon the articles, all of which have been imported. The goods were taken to the office of Receiver Nathan Lorner and examined by an expert.

They are said to be worth at least $10,000, most of that sum being spent in a number of fine and expensive articles of lace, such as curtains, collarettes, handkerchiefs, etc. Some of the handkerchiefs are valued at $160 each.

ANOTHER INDICTMENT IN LAND FRAUD CASE

PORTLAND, ORE., Jan. 22.—The federal grand jury has returned an additional indictment against George Sorenson, charging him with perjury in connection with the land fraud cases now under investigation by the government authorities. Sorenson was tried on a charge of attempting to bribe former United States District Attorney John H. Hall, but the jury failed to agree and was discharged by Judge Bellinger.

WILLING TO HELP SANTO DOMINGO

Uncle Sam to Lend a Hand in Straightening Out Financial Tangle.

NO PROTECTORATE INTENDED

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—After a consultation with Secretary Hay, the following statement regarding the situation in Santo Domingo was issued by Assistant Secretary Loomis today:

The Dominican republic, after mature consideration of existing conditions, has formally and freely invited the government of the United States to assist it in the administration of its customs revenues, and to aid it in establishing its fiscal system upon a firm and businesslike basis.

The government of the United States having been explicitly, repeatedly and emphatically informed by more than one of the great powers that it ought either to try to evolve some order out of the financial chaos in the Dominican republic or assent to certain European exertions of that republic during this and to the administration of the Dominican custom houses by them, supported by their warships, has deemed it advisable in view of the unfortunate financial conditions in Santo Domingo to accept the invitation of the Dominican government, and therefore representatives of the government and of Santo Domingo have signed a memorandum of a proposed agreement looking to the American control of the fiscal affairs, upon the request and with the consent of the Dominican government.

Will Not Assume Protectorate.

The United States proposes to guarantee the territorial integrity of the Dominican republic. It is not the purpose of this government to assume a protectorate over Santo Domingo, or to interfere with, or participate in, its domestic affairs, nor further than the collection of its customs revenues, the necessary revision of its tariff laws and the adjustment, through properly constituted tribunals or commissions of its foreign claims, and its economic fiscal organization on a sound basis may make it essential to do.

President Morales has signed a decree in which the government of the United States is officially asked to take full charge of all the Dominican custom houses; to name all the employes, and to collect all the revenues, 45 per cent of which are to be returned to the Dominican government for its current expenses. The balance is to be used to meet the interest charges on the acknowledged bonded indebtedness and other obligations of the republic. Any surplus will be turned over to the Dominican government. The obligations representing the bonded indebtedness are largely owned by foreign creditors.

Does Not Guarantee Debts.

The government of the United States does not guarantee the debts of Santo Domingo, or agrees to provide for the payment of them, but only promises to try to organize and adjust the fiscal administration of the country that in time their liquidation may be accomplished automatically, and on a basis of equity toward all creditors.

It is believed that if the Dominican revenues are wisely collected and disbursed all legitimate claims against the republic will be ultimately satisfied.

A deplorable feature of the financial situation in Santo Domingo is that her revenues have been crippled by granting, for a song, valuable concessions which were exempted by stipulation from all taxation. Her interests have compelled the Dominican government to disregard these promises of exemption from taxation, and this has resulted in numerous and increasing appeals to the department of state to interfere.

The Dominican government itself reached the conclusion that its only hope of escape from bankruptcy was through the assistance of the United States government in the organization of its finances. In view of these grave conditions the president has deemed it wise at this time to assent to the strongly-expressed wish of the Dominican government.

GRAND DUKE VLADIMIR HAS DAY OF BLOOD

Plays Napoleonic Role—Aristocratic Ladies Would Nurse the Wounded.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The London Telegraph has the following from its St. Petersburg correspondent:

I asked a high court official why so little ceremony was made about killing unarmed workmen and students. He answered: "Because the civil law has been suspended and martial law reigns. You are surprised because the people were unaware thereof, but here we don't do things like in England. Last night the czar decided to suspend the civil law and confide the maintenance of order to Grand Duke Vladimir, who knows the history of the French revolution and won't stand any nonsense.

"Vladimir won't make the blunder committed by Louis XVI.'s officers. He will display no weakness. His infallible cure for the constitutional complaints of the people always has been to hang a hundred malcontents in the presence of their comrades, but heretofore Vladimir's advice has not been heeded. Today Vladimir is supreme and has experimented to his heart's content. The grand duchess, however, in despairing. The women of all of the grand ducal palaces are frightened and are telephoning hourly to learn the number of wounded in the hospitals and what they can do to assist. Vladimir, however, is proud of the opportunity to display his Napoleonic qualities, and does not fear the result. No matter what happens, Vladimir will be able to quell the masses, even if it is necessary to bring all the troops at his disposal against the population."

The people tonight, learning that Vladimir was responsible for today's bloodshed, exclaim: "Red is Vladimir's color today, but another day soon is coming, and we will sport the grand duke's colors when it comes."

Despite the reports that the czar is at Tsarkoe-Selo, it is believed he is stopping with his mother, the dowager empress, at Aultchkoff palace, about a mile distant from the winter palace. The people seemed to be astoundingly stolid and to think that nothing could be worse than previous conditions. Endeavoring to photograph a Cossack charge I was knocked down. Near Isaac cathedral I passed a cart containing a blood-covered man dying in the arms of his weeping wife. Thirty other carts laden with wounded followed.

WORKMEN STILL BRAVE THE AWFUL SLAUGHTER

Although Thousands Are Dead and Wounded, Strikers Continue Struggle.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 23.—(4 a. m.) There are 2,000 dead in the streets and 5,000 wounded in the hospitals and still the workmen of St. Petersburg are fighting the soldiers of the czar. On one hand is heard the word, revolution. The mob, smashed at the bridges, driven from their barricades with appalling slaughter, ridden over, sabred and shot and beaten, rallied in the evening and is again streaming out of the Nevsky Prospect in the direction of the Moscow station.

It is no longer the submissive crowd that submitted to be shot and slashed in the morning. Many of them have obtained arms and the rifle fire of the troops is being answered with pistol shots. They are smashing windows and destroying property all along their way and it is believed that if the soldiers are not able to stop them they will reach Knitchkoff palace, which is the residence of the Grand Duke Sergius Alexandrovich.

The whole city is in an uproar. Nobody knows what daylight will reveal. Since yesterday morning the approaches of the bridges across the Neva have been a shambles. There are 50,000 soldiers fighting the rising populace; against them is an incalculable mob. On every hand is heard cries of "Liberty, fraternity and equality." The students that have joined the workmen started the "Marseillaise" and in a hundred dreadful particulars the early scenes of the French revolution are being repeated in frozen St. Petersburg.

One body of strikers, determined to reach the czar at his retreat at Tsarkoe-selo. They streamed out along the road for 12 miles, then they encountered a regiment of cavalry, who charged them, and a sanguinary conflict ensued.

CZAR ANSWERS WORKMEN

obstruction and marched over the street, which was then encumbered with 50 dead or wounded, lying on snow crimsoned with human blood.

There is a rumor that the workmen on the island have seized a dynamite factory and also that 20,000 or 40,000 armed strikers from Kolpino, 16 miles distant, are marching on St. Petersburg.

It is reported that a body of strikers tried to reach Tsarskoe-Selo, but were driven back by the troops after a sanguinary conflict.

The workmen tonight were arming with every available weapon for a renewal of the struggle tomorrow. They have few firearms, but are improvising trade implements into weapons.

The strike leaders assembled and decided to continue the struggle. At a big meeting tonight the following message from M. Gorky, the novelist, was read:

"Beloved Associates: We have no emperor. Innocent blood lies between him and the people. Now begins the people's struggle for freedom. May it prosper. My blessing upon you all. Would I might be with you tonight; but I have much to do."

A workman who was introduced to speak in Father Gopon's name made a fiery speech. He appealed to Liberals to furnish arms. The meeting adopted a letter denouncing the officers and regiments that fired on the workmen, and another letter extolling the Moscow regiment which refused to fire.

The most harrowing scenes of the day occurred around the palace square. This enormous place back of the winter palace is surrounded by gardens fronting the admiralty and by a vast semi-circular building containing the offices of the general staff, the ministry of finance and the foreign office. In the center of the block is cut an arched gateway surmounted by a bronze quadriga. The gateway serves as an entrance to the Grand Morskaia, one of the most fashionable streets of the city, which crosses the Nevsky Prospect. Beyond the semi-circular building is a wide space leading to the Moika canal and beyond this stands an enormous square building, the headquarters of the St. Petersburg military district. From thence Grand Duke Vladimir had issued orders for the whole military preparations, directing the day's operations.

Supports Statue of Victory.

In the center of the square stands an enormous granite column supporting a statue of Victory, commemorating the defeat of the Napoleonic invasion at which a veteran guard of the uniform of the period of Alexander I. stands sentinel.

When the Associated Press correspondent arrived at the palace square early this morning he found a considerable crowd of demonstrators already lining the railings of the admiralty garden and the boulevard. The square itself presented the appearance of a military encampment. Several companies of the Davlovsky and Preobrajensky guards had piled their arms, while the men were sitting around campfires or stamping in the snow to keep warm. Beyond the infantry stood squadrons of the Chevalier guards and the horse guards, without their lances, cuirasses or the usual gay trappings. The men carried carbines slung across their shoulders, and their stirrups were covered with felt or straw to keep off the cold. All the soldiers wore hoods, to protect their ears from the keen, searching wind. A field kitchen steamed merrily, disseminating the fragrant odor of viands. Many of the men wrestled or boxed, cracking jokes as one rolled on the snow. A whole row of ambulances drawn up near the palace served as a grim reminder of the stern business on hand.

Meanwhile pickets were stationed at all the entrances at the palace and cavalry patrols kept promenading along the sidewalks. Sleigh traffic continued uninterrupted until the time came for the cavalary to charge. The crowd of strikers in and outside the admiralty gardens continued to grow hourly, swelled by arrivals from the Nevsky Prospect, which touches upon the boulevard skirting the gardens.

The strikers manned and held a small edifice at the corner of the gardens and poured out constant insults and reproaches at the troops. It was in vain that officers requested them to disperse. "We have come to present our homage and grievances to the emperor."

"Let the emperor come out and hear us; we do not wish to do harm."

"Long live Nicholas II. If he only listens to our grievances we are sure he will be just and merciful."

"We cannot longer endure our sufferings. Better die at once and end all."

Such were the cries repeatedly heard from many strikers. Many strikers brought their wives and children.

Insulted the Soldiers.

"You soldiers are our brothers; you cannot shoot these little ones," they exclaimed. But as the pickets and patrols continued driving off the people the demonstrators began to give way, and the bitterest insults and oaths in which the Russian vocabulary is particularly rich became frequent. "We are not Japanese, why brutalize us? Will you shame the mothers who bore you who were Russians like ourselves?" were some of the cries that were heard. Later such expressions as "scoundrels," "mercenaries," "dogs," and worse were heard. A long-haired student among the crowd hurled an insult at an officer, who sent a couple of men to arrest him. The crowd tried to rescue the student, but the latter was dragged and kicked across the sunlit square, his long hair tossing in the wind. The crowd broke into a storm of hoots and hisses. Then a young workman jeered at a soldier, who applied his rifle butt, and, with the help of comrades, dragged the workman, despite his piteous pleadings, to the lock-up.

Every time the troops moved the crowds hissed them. Strikers also gathered at the entrance of the Grand Morskai and of the avenue leading to the Moika canal. The crowd at the latter place swelled to huge proportions, blocking the bridge across the canal.

Shrieks from Wounded Heard.

The order came at 1:30 p. m. to clear them off. The colonel commanding the horse guards uttered a short, sharp command, the troopers drew their swords and advanced at a quick trot, and then broke into a gallop, heading straight for the Moika, where they were lost in a cloud of snow. Shrieks from the wounded resounded. Then came a deadly silence, broken only by the galloping of ambulance horses.

The next 20 minutes passed without incident. Nothing indicated the approach of the horrible butchery which was destined to stain the corner of the admiralty gardens with human blood. The crowd there persisted in refusing to move on, clamoring for the emperor, and continually hurling abuse at the troops, but attempted no violence. Two companies of the Preobrajensky guards, of which Emperor Nicholas himself was formerly colonel, which had been standing at ease in front of the palace, formed and marched at double quick toward the fatal corner. Events followed with awful swiftness. The commanding officer shouted "Disperse! Disperse! Disperse!" Many in the crowd turned to flee, but it was too late. A bugle sounded and the men in the front ranks sank to their knees and both companies fired three volleys, the first two with blank cartridges and the last with balls. A hundred corpses strewed the sidewalk.

Women Shot in Back.

Many women were pierced through the back as they were trying to escape. The correspondent, standing behind the troops, saw mangled corpses of persons of all ages and both sexes strewing the ground. One boy of 13 had his skull pierced and rent by bullets. Great spisshes and streams of blood stained the snow. Only a few of the victims remained alive, for the fatal volley was fired at a distance of not more than 20 paces, and so the ambulances had little work to do. The police recruited a large number of sleighs to carry off the dead. Heartrending scenes were witnessed as wives, husbands and mothers came up to claim their dear ones and were carried off with them in the sleighs.

Meanwhile the crowd had drifted up the Nevsky Prospect, yelling "Murderers! Murderers!" and the square resumed its calm aspect, the troops returning to their stations. It was now the turn for the crowd stationed at the Morskaia entrance to the square, where the horse guards repeated the exploit with which they had cleared the Moika, and drove the people pell-mell down the thoroughfare. From thence forward the palace square ceased to be the center of interest. The correspondent went to the Grand Morskaia and stood a whole hour near the corner of the Nevsky Prospect.

American Secretary Watches Scene.

The fashionable hotels on either side of the Grand Morskaia were crowded, but the doors were locked except to well-known visitors. Fashionable jewelry and other stores were barred, but mostly unshuttered. Quite a number of prominent persons stood on the sidewalks watching the developments. Secretary Spencer Eddy of the American embassy chatted with Grand Duke Boris, who had driven up in a stylish sleigh drawn by a magnificent trotter. M. Bombard, the French ambassador, drove past with his wife. As a couple of squadrons of red-capped Hussars trotted by, the officers gave the command, "Use the flats of your swords."

Then the troopers moved off and disappeared down the street, the crowds shrieking "Murderous dogs," but quickly vanishing before them. A few who were wounded were picked up and conveyed to a drug store on the opposite corner of the Grand Morskai and the Nevsky Prospect. No troops were visible for as much as half an hour. A crowd quickly formed outside the drug store, and an orator was found for the occasion. Standing on the steps of the drug store he addressed the impromptu meeting thus:

Speaker Arouses the Crowd.

"Comrades—We came humbly and peacefully to meet the emperor and lay our grievances before him, but the emperor refuses to see us, and instead soldiers were sent to shoot us down. Then all I can say is he is no emperor."

"Down with the emperor!" shouted the crowd.

"We have suffered under the sway of the Chinovniks," said the speaker.

"Down with the Chinovniks!" yelled the crowd.

"We hoped for redress, but hope is no longer possible. We can win our rights only by fighting," said the speaker.

"Down with the autocracy!" yelled the crowd.

"Our only chance of redress is from representatives of the people."

"Long live the constitutional assembly!" cried his hearers.

"Then all I have to say is, to arms, comrades, to arms."

"To arms," was the thunderous response.

The crowd was aroused to a state of frenzy, at the sight of the wounded, who were being brought out of the drug store and placed in ambulances, and saluted them as martyrs. Every head was uncovered as the victims were conveyed away.

The wilder element in the crowd had now got the upper hand and proceeded to attack every officer in sight. A general driving up the Nevsky Prospect was mobbed with shouts of "Murderer." His sword was captured as a trophy, the crowds shouting "Hurrah."

Another general was nearly dragged from his sleigh, but clutched the driver desperately, and in escaping was struck on his bald head by a glass bottle and stunned. Swords were wrenched from several passing officers, and the crowd shouted "Break their swords, but do not beat them."

The appearance of several companies of infantry restored order, but the crowds refused to disperse and several volleys were fired and a number of people killed.

Half a dozen policemen were surrounded by a crowd in a neighboring side street. The policemen drew their revolvers and fired, and one of them was killed by a comrade's misdirected fire.

There was a very dramatic scene at the Nevra gate when Father Gopon, in golden vestments and bearing aloft an ikon, and flanked by two clergymen carrying religious banners, approached at the head of a procession of 8,000 workmen. Troops were drawn up across the entrance. Several times an officer called upon the procession to stop, but Father Gapon did not falter. Then an order was given to fire, first with blank cartridges. Two volleys rang out, but the line still did not waver. Then, with seeming reluctance, an officer gave the command to load with ball, and the next volley was followed by shrieks and cries of the wounded.

Soldiers Spare Father Gopon.

As the Cossacks followed up the volley with a charge the workmen fled before them, leaving about 100 dead or wounded. It was evident that the soldiers deliberately spared Father Gopon. One of the clergymen by his side was wounded, but he escaped untouched and hid behind a wall until the Cossacks passed, and he was then spirited away by workmen. A portrait of Emperor Nicholas, carried by one of the priests, was smashed.

At the Putiloff works the scene resembled a shambles. There the workmen facing the troops when the order was given to fire threw themselves upon their faces on the ground. The troops fired on them as they lay prostrate.

During the evening there were more foot passengers in the streets than might have been expected, but nothing like the gayety and bustle of an ordinary Sunday evening. Comment on the action of the troops and authorities is very bitter, and sarcastic remarks are made that officers are braver against the defenseless public than against the Japanese, and that ammunition may be scarce in the far east, but is too plentiful here."

General Struck on Head.

Returns from only three of the numerous hospitals give 32 dead and 125 wounded. Many of the wounded have been taken to their own homes. Broken windows and embedded bullets are found at long distances from the scene of the firing.

The rioters broke windows in the palace of Grand Duke Alexis.

The following is the text of a letter addressed by Father Gopon to Emperor Nicholas last night:

"Sovereign: I fear your ministers have not told you the full truth about the situation. The whole people, trusting in you, have resolved to appear at the winter palace at 2 p. m., in order to inform you of their needs. If, vacillating, you do not appear before the people, then the moral bonds between you and the people who trust in you will disappear because innocent blood will flow between you and the people. Appear tomorrow before your people and receive our address of devotion in a courageous spirit. I and the representatives of labor and my brave workingmen and comrades guarantee the inviolability of your person."

COSSACKS GRIN AS BLOOD FLOWS

Czar's Soldiers in St. Petersburg Laugh and Chat Amid Scenes of Carnage.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]
(Copyright, 1905, by New York Herald Co.)

LONDON, Jan. 22.—One eye witness of some of the scenes of carnage which marked what is being called "Vladimir's Day," in St. Petersburg, this described it to the London Express correspondent:

We drove past the residence of M. Witte on Stone Island prospect, and there faces were visible at the windows. A couple of hundred yards from there a multitude of men, with a sprinkling of girls, came marching very slowly toward Trinity bridge, which leads to the quay on the extremity of which the Winter palace is situated. There were about 600 persons all told, very orderly, very sedate and very solemn. The first 10 or 15 ranks were composed of persons linked arm in arm. We stood up in our sleigh and watched them pass. They turned to us and other spectators, exhorting us to join them and share their fate.

We drove around another street in order to be present when the crowd should reach the bridge. When we arrived on the square, formed by Kronverk prospect just where the bridge debouches onto several roads near Witte's house, we met Cossacks on foot darting across the bridge at full speed. This was more surprising in that all the avenues to the bridge were already occupied by gendarmes and mounted Cossacks. The Cossacks on foot were heartily enjoying the fun and in a few minutes they were at their post, laughing and chattering.

Fired Deliberately on the Crowd.

When the order was given in form in array and fire, a merry bugle sound thrilled the hearts of everyone, sending a police officer and some civilians who happened, like ourselves, to be in the center of the square, scampering off, whereby the police inspector fell on a snow heap. Just as we got on the right side of the Cossacks they fired, deliberately and calmly, several volleys on the advancing crowd. The black mass of men paused, wavered and drew back. Screams and shouts, subdued by distance, struck our ears, then came curses and prayers and signs of the cross from the few fugitives and spectators on the square. Lastly there was a charge of mounted Cossacks against ourselves and the people in Dvoransky street, and thereupon the incident seemed to vanish, together with the curling clouds of blue smoke which rose from the crackling bonfires and were scattered by the polar gusts.

The Cossacks grinned, cracked jokes, danced and resumed their merry games, while the spectators who were separated from the crowd of students and workmen by some 40 yards felt reassured by the light-hearted attitude of the troops and exclaimed: "Thank heaven." It was only blank cartridges by way of warning, but meanwhile the Cossacks had made a dash on the crowd, driving them back, and then picked up the dead and wounded. My watch pointed to 11:20 as this deed of blood was done. From time to time the Cossacks made charges.

Powerful Men Shed Tears.

From time to time the Cossacks made charges against the throng, never using their whips, but only their hands, for officers say that the order had been given to refrain from violence until the moment came to use rifles, and then to fire deliberately and thoroughly.

I drove to the Imperial library, where some Liberals had gathered together at 2 o'clock, to compare notes. A speech was made in the public reading room to haggard, nervous and overstrung men and women, who, like myself, had not gone to bed since Friday night.

Amnesky said that doleful news had come, that blood had been shed, and he asked us all whether we could give particulars. A statement was then made public respecting the conduct of the troops, and several powerfully built, bearded men burst into tears. Suddenly a messenger rushed into the hall, panting and trembling in every limb.

"I am sorry to have to announce that troops are firing on the people; blood is being wantonly shed," he said, "and the government is treating the Russians as enemies. I propose we all march in a body to the palace and there share the fate of our comrades, even though it be death."

Indescribable excitement followed upon this short address. Hearers leaped to their feet, rushed down the spacious staircase and marched in a body down Nevsky Prospect. It was then 2:30 and we drove toward the palace, determined to penetrate as far as the farthest line of the crowd, but before we had traversed half way Cossacks met us, turned us back and charged pedestrians, driving them pell mell into side streets.

Cossacks Delighted in the Attack.

The crowd shouted "Down with autocracy!" and asked the troops why they had not fought like that against the Japanese. The crowd had been driving further and further from the winter palace and I witnessed repeated charges of mounted Cossacks, who seemed to enjoy the sport of knocking folks down or dealing them stunning blows on the heads. The people who suffered especially were those collected in front of Alexander garden, which is opposite the admiralty and about 150 yards from the winter palace. They clung tenaciously to the iron railings of the garden and refused to be dislodged, but their conduct was irreproachable. Having amused themselves for over an hour with this kind of sport, the Cossacks were quietly formed into martial line and, the order being given to fire, they blazed away at the front line of the spectators, composed principally of students, with a zeal which might have worked wonders in Manchuria.

Execrations, screams and moans arose on the frosty air. The panic-stricken crowd rushed away and 30 odd men lay convulsed in the agonies of death on the crimson-dyed snow. To their credit, be it said, the students did not flee, but picked up the most of their comrades, put them in sleighs and drove away.

I accompanied one sleigh in which two students, one of them wounded, sat holding a dead comrade whose open mouth and glazed-eyed waxen face and protruding brains aroused a feeling of unspeakable horror in the spectators. Crowds followed the sleigh, devoutly bareheaded, making the sign of the cross and uttering curses on noble heads which but yesterday were mentioned with bated breath.

Died in Liberty's Cause.

When we had reached Aniichkoff palace, where the dowager empress and possibly the czar is living, a squadron of Cossacks, hearing the wails of the people, rode up to learn the cause. Catching sight of the white, upturned visage and the red stains on the sleigh cloth they shook their heads at us grimly, and cantered off good humoredly.

Over Trinity bridge, which ends at the British embassy, another body of unarmed men was moving slowly without any red flags or other symbols of disaffection, when the police officer called out they must go back. They did not obey, probably could not do so, and they certainly had very little time. Thereupon the police superintendent rushed up to the officer in charge of Petrofsky's guards and shouted something. The word of command was uttered and a volley was fired, but the cartridges were blank.

The people laughed and cracked jokes with the soldiers and then another set of rifles flared sharply. Four or five men fell and little streamlets of blood worked red furrows in the white snow, when another volley and yet another rang out on the frosty air, and men who a moment before were brimful of life and energy, dropped lifeless to earth.

One young officer in spectacles moved up to another and, rubbing his reddish nose, remarked: "The men are not playing fair. They are firing over the heads of the people and down upon the ground. Oh, if it were not for that more than 100 would be lying low."

A deputation from the Liberal committee entered the Alexandrinsky theater and addressed the public, asking them to honor the dead who had died for liberty by causing amusements to cease. The audience warmly applauded, and left the theater in a body.

BLOOD MARKS WAY OF IRONWORKERS

Putiloff Strikers March to Their Doom Headed by Priest Leader.

THREE HUNDRED ARE KILLED

RUSSIA AS COMPARED WITH THE UNITED STATES

Russia's population in 1903 was 141,000,000; that of the United States 80,000,000.

In Russia 100,000,000 are starving to death on a salary of from 8 to 9 cents per day.

Russia stands next to the United States as a grain producing country, but the average laborer there gets only one-fourth as much wages as in the United States.

The workingman's diet consists of meal, flour and grits, cabbage and potatoes; no meat, excepting three times a year. This is less than any civilized country.

The hovel he lives in is 2¼ yards long and 1½ yards high, harboring the whole family and whatever cattle he possesses.

Russia is two and one-half times as large as the United States and Alaska, but America has 53 times as many miles of telegraph and sends 15 times as much mail.

The United States has 25 times as many factories as Russia.

Russia produces one-twentieth as much coal and one-sixth as much iron as is produced in the United States.

In Russia there are only 90 daily newspapers; in the United States there are 2,467.

The United States has 210,000 miles of railways; Russia has only 36,000 miles of railways, two-thirds of it owned by the government.

[Special Cable to The Gazette.]
(Copyright, 1905, by New York Herald Co.)

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The London Express correspondent describes the massacre of the strikers of the Putiloff iron works as one of the horrible features of St. Petersburg's day of bloodshed.

The Putiloff strikers left their barrack homes about the factory according to their program, bringing with them their wives and children and even their babies, as had been arranged. Father Gopon marched at their head, bearing his crucifix aloft above a great roll containing the precious petition. They marched down Petarhoff chaussee, where the works stand, down the hill to where at the Neva gate a triumphal arch was created after the Turkish war. It stands at the junction with the main Baltic thoroughfare. There the Ismailovsky guards, the regiment of which the czar is honorary colonel, was drawn up in waiting.

As the head of the procession approached the acting colonel called upon them to stop. Father Gopon, still holding his crucifix, advanced and demanded that the colonel should receive and forward their petition. This request was declined. Then, after a moment's hesitation and discussion, the procession continued to advance. A sharp order was given, the soldiers raised their rifles and a volley rang out. But they only used blank cartridges. Another order, this time ball cartridges, and men, women and children fell in heaps. Father Gopon, still clutching his crucifix, was foremost among the dead and dying, with the petition.

Then the crowd, no longer in procession, turned and fled, all but 300, who were lying dead and 500 writhing wounded. Some who had revolvers fired as they fled. Others carried ice picks and some had stones, but practically they were unarmed. It was all over with the Putiloff strike procession and at 11:40 o'clock the strikers were still in sight of their works. As they retreated the soldiers followed, and before a quarter of an hour most of them had fled to their homes and there only remained the dead and wounded, who were removed with the usual Russian skill, to be taken to the hospitals or homes.

Twenty thousand people started from Kolpino, a manufacturing village, 25 miles away. At the Moscow arch, on the confines of the town, they met with six volleys. A thousand fell dead and 1,500 were wounded. From up the river a great crowd marched to the Nevsky gate, where 500 fell dead and 700 were wounded. The Vassili Ostrov workers lost 200 killed and 700 wounded.

DUKE CARL MICHAEL UNDER SUSPICION

Relative of German Prince's Fiancee May Have Plotted Against Czar.

[Special Cable to The Gazette.]

BERLIN, Jan. 22.—It has caused a sensation in court circles here that a near relative of Crown Prince William's fiancee, Duke Karl Michael of Mecklenburg, has been arrested at St. Petersburg, suspected of having conspired against the life of the czar. The duke is a major-general in the Russian army and commander-in-chief of the First brigade of the artillery of the guard and is accused of having had some knowledge of the grape-shot charge, which came so near killing the czar and the whole imperial family at the blessing of the waters of the Neva.

It is not yet known what proofs the Russian police have of his guilt, but should he be convicted it will be a terrible shock to the court here. In a telegram which the kaiser sent the czar to congratulate him on his narrow escape, he expressed the hope that the affair will be proved to be due to an accident, but says that if any one is to blame, he should be punished as severely as the law allows, no matter how high his position or how influential his connections.

PLANNED A MASSACRE OF THE DISCONTENTED

Dr. Soskic Says the Reactionary Party Decided on Decisive Blow.

(Special Cable to La Prensa of Buenos Ayres. Transmitted to the New York Herald and Pittsburgh Gazette for Simultaneous Publication.)

LONDON, Jan. 22.—I have had a talk with Dr. Soskic, editor of Free Russia. He says Father Gopon still believes in the czar's good faith and urges the workmen to approach the emperor.

They have suspicions here that the reactionary party decided to strike a decisive blow at the discontented population, and therefore waited till the whole mass were in the streets in order to strike terror. This criminal policy may be crowned with success for a few days or weeks, but will necessarily be followed by an armed uprising in the industrial centers and an agrarian war.

If the czar accepts the zemstvo resolution the dynasty may be saved, but the strikers' petition goes much further. Today's bloodshed will make the popular demands more extreme. The real enemies of the people are the Cossacks, but the final victory of the revolution is beyond doubt.

LONDON PAPERS FLAY RUSSIA

"Little Father" Has Become Murderer of His People. Other Severe Comment.

REVOLUTION HAS COMMENCED

[Associated Press Cable to The Gazette.]

LONDON, Jan. 23.—Such phrases as these, extracted from editorial articles in the London morning newspapers, sufficiently indicate the opinion held here of yesterday's events in St. Petersburg:

"Revolt has been quelled but revolution begun."

"The bureaucracy has declared its policy; it is the policy of the Blagovestchenk massacre."

"The inevitable reaction has begun and with it a new chapter in Russia's history and probably also in the history of Europe and Asia."

"The revolutionary movement in Russia has received its baptism of blood, its crown of martyrdom."

"Is there a Mirabeau or even a Danton in Russia today?"

"A very grave responsibility lies today at the door of the czar, who has failed to grasp his unique opportunity."

"The 'Little Father' has become the murderer of his people, and it remains with him to save the country from disaster. Even at the eleventh hour he may do so, but only by recognizing that autocracy has gone forever."

It is pointed out that the fate of Russia does not depend upon the people of St. Petersburg alone, but on the masses throughout the country, and it is considered that the events of recent months connected with the agitation for constitutional reform sufficiently attest the people's temper.

Some of the special dispatches from St. Petersburg this morning comment upon the unexpectedly determined attitude displayed by the Russian workmen yesterday as revealing a new phase in the character of the patient masses.

The correspondent of the Daily Mail says that 20,000 people from Kolpino were met at the Moscow arch, on the confines of St. Petersburg with six volleys and that a thousand fell dead and 1,500 were wounded. Other correspondents state that the workmen have proclaimed their intention to attack private property, and that Minister of the Interior Sviatopolk-Mirsky has consented to receive a deputation of workmen today. While many estimate the casualties at anywhere near 2,000 killed and 5,000 wounded, there is everywhere conclusive evidence of the impossibility of yet estimating with any degree of exactitude.

MAY RESULT IN BREAKING FRANCO-RUSSIAN ALLIANCE

Intense Indignation Is Expressed in Paris, Anarchists Leave City for St. Petersburg.

[Special Cable to The Gazette.]

PARIS, Jan. 22.—No event of recent years has created so profound an impression among all classes of the population in Paris as the news of the dreadful effects of the efforts of the Russian soldiery to put down the uprising of the workingmen.

Great crowds gathered early about the newspaper bulletin boards and they constantly increased during the day and remained until far into the night. The prevailing tone as the list of the slaughtered steadily grew and the horror of the thing became more apparent, was of intense indignation against the Russian government and careful observers do not hesitate to express the opinion that one of the first problems which the new French premier, M. Rouvier, will have to face will be an overwhelming popular demand that France withdraw her alliance with Russia.

From a reliable source it is learned a number of the most dangerous anarchists in Paris have disappeared and it is believed they are on their way to St. Petersburg to take part in their own way in the struggle inaugurated there today.

My Offer to Kidney Sufferers

I will give you a full dollar's worth of my remedy free to try without cost or deposit or promise to pay.

I could not make this offer—a full dollar's worth free—if mine were an ordinary kidney remedy. It is not. It treats not the kidneys themselves, but the nerves that control them. The cause of kidney trouble lies always in these nerves. The only way to cure kidney trouble is by strengthening and vitalizing and restoring these kidney nerves. That is exactly what my remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative—does. Therefore I can make this offer with the certain knowledge that every kidney sufferer who makes this trial will be helped.

When I say "nerves," I do not mean the ordinary nerves of feeling, thought, action. I mean the automatic nerves, which night and day, unguided and unseen, control and actuate and operate every vital process of life. These are the master nerves. The kidneys are their slaves. Your mind cannot control them. Your will cannot sway them. Yet when they are strong, you are well; when they are not, you weaken and die.

I have written a book on the Kidneys which will be sent when you write. This book explains fully and clearly how these tiny, tender "inside" nerves control not only the kidneys but each of the other vital organs.

I have made my offer that strangers to my remedy may know. It is not intended for or open to those who have used my remedy. They need no further evidence. But to those who have not heard, or hearing, may have delayed or doubted, I say "simply write and ask." I will send you an order for which your druggist will hand you a full dollar bottle—and he will send the bill to me. There are no conditions—no requirements—simply write me today.

For a free order for a full dollar bottle you must address Dr. Shoop, Box 3568, Racine, Wis. State which book you want.

Monday, January 23, 1905.

It is gratifying to note that in every contest of Saturday's primaries in Allegheny the Wyman administration candidates were beaten. The people of Allegheny have evidently awakened to the futility of expecting any good thing from the Citizens party as it is conducted on the North Side. This was indicated by the vote for county officers at the last election. The administration of affairs over there has been much worse than in Pittsburgh, though there has been wholesale violation of pledges in this city. Allegheny must be congratulated on the overthrow of the Wyman machine and it is to be hoped it will now go forward toward ideal conditions, until as a part of Greater Pittsburgh it will be in position to help elevate the whole.

If John Sharp Williams carries out his intimation of resigning he may set another precedent that will lead to the adoption of a European custom here. There if the parliament or chamber does not follow the premier when he leads, he feels compelled to resign and allow another leader to be chosen. To be sure Mr. Williams is only leader of the minority, but the principle would be the same. It seems that Mr. Williams opposed the feature in the army bill forbidding full pay to all army officers above the rank of major who join the staffs of governors. He wanted the other Democrats to vote with him, but most of them refused. It will be recalled that Mr. Bailey resigned the leadership of the majority when he was in the house because the members did not follow him.

In taking charge of the fiscal affairs of Santo Domingo, while guaranteeing its integrity, the United States is merely performing its duties as policeman and court of last resort. Santo Domingo has reached a condition where repression and the appointment of a receiver have become absolutely necessary to secure the interests of its people and those who have dealings with them. It is likely to become necessary for the United States to take similar steps with other petty states in the Western Hemisphere, in order to preserve peace with the nations. There is no disposition in assuming these responsibilities to encroach upon the liberties of sister republics. It is an unpleasant and probably thankless task, but is justified on the same grounds as the abatement of a common nuisance in an unlidy neighborhood.

Without any of that excess sympathy that balks at the idea of inflicting the death penalty upon a woman, there are features in the case of Mrs. Kate Edwards at Reading that appeal for a careful review by the state authorities. It appears the woman, ignorant in the beginning, was dragged down to a sort of dumb brute existence by a brutal husband, who frequently left the marks of his physical assaults upon her person. When arrested she did not deny killing him, but it appeared strange to her that she should be punished by death for the crime. Under prison influence and the companionship of her baby, born in prison, it is testified she has brightened and improved. Her maternal love for the infant is exemplary and all those who have personally observed her unite in pleading for commutation of sentence. The case is attracting wide attention as the date for her execution approaches.

The president's decision to appoint W. W. Pepper director of the bureau of American republics calls attention to the fact that there is such an organization. Fifteen years ago much was predicted as the result of its efforts to disseminate information about the countries on this continent. The project of greater co-operation between them was one of Mr. Blaine's pet ideas and the bureau was formed as the result of the Pan-American conference in which he was greatly interested. Beside the publication of the official organization, the bureau has a museum where much can be learned about the products of the different countries, both raw and finished. One of the obstacles to closer trade relations between the republics has been the failure to adapt manufactured articles to the needs of the people to whom they were to be sold. In this respect European nations have excelled.

Since the surrender of Port Arthur the Japanese have been very active in arresting cargoes bound for Vladivostok. The majority of vessels seized have been sailing under the British flag, as might be expected, both on account of the predominance of the British merchant marine and because the flag of an ally would be rather more likely to be looked on with a friendly eye by the Japanese. These seizures have resulted in a panic among the British marine insurance agents. They are taking no more risks, which will make it difficult for Russia to run cargoes. All this might have been foreseen. The Japanese are a systematic people. One thing at a time and that one done well is their rule. Vladivostok was neglected because it was more important to keep supplies out of Port Arthur, particularly supplies of ammunition. It is easier to guard the northern port, for it must be approached through narrow straits, adjacent to Japanese coasts.

The visits of W. J. Bryan to Washington do not excite the derision they did when he went there after his defeats in presidential elections. Considering the fact that the free silver issue on which he insisted is almost forgotten, he retains a remarkable hold on the radical elements of his party. He has repeatedly warned Democrats against leadership by the elements which came to the front in the last election and now he receives some attention when he says "I told you so." There is some humor, however, in the suggestion that he went to the capital to save the Democratic issues which he thought President Roosevelt was preparing to steal. Democrats have had so many different planks in their platforms that they can hardly expect to patent any of them.

The St. Petersburg Butchery.

The horrible events taking place in St. Petersburg will shake the credit of Russia even more severely than her reverses in war, as it seems as if the state itself was in the throes of revolution. Grave apprehensions are excited as to the stability of the government, and the next few days will be a period of great anxiety in every European capital, as it must soon appear whether the scenes in the capital will act as an incitement of outbreaks elsewhere. If a revolutionary movement of national scope should develop the danger of anarchy would be imminent. Some observers see in the situation a parallel to that of France before the revolution of 1789, and if uprisings of the peasants against the provincial authorities should now break out the Russian government will have plenty to do in suppressing insurrection at home without prosecuting a war at which national sentiment is in revolt.

Nevertheless it is easy to overestimate the political significance of the struggles and to misconceive the political consequences. It should be remembered that the popular demonstration did not begin as a political movement, but as a strike among the factory workers which soon became general. Doubtless political agitators have tried to use the movement, but in the main it has been an appeal to the czar as the father of his people, and contained no revolutionary purpose. It was only after collisions between the troops and the people began that political agitators obtained prominence. The clear and authentic narrative of the Associated Press shows that the authorities decided upon a policy of terrorism. Had such a demonstration taken place in London it would have probably been handled by the police alone without any loss of life. In St. Petersburg no sort of conciliation was attempted, but the petitions of desperate people were answered by bullets fired at a distance of twenty paces, so that the scene was immediately strewn thickly by the dead and wounded. It was not a contest but a butchery.

It is, however, plain from the accounts that the troops are masters of the situation, and that as a body they are faithful to the authorities. It is reported that one infantry regiment refused to fire when ordered, but there appears to have been no hesitation among the other regiments which are present in ample force. It must also be remembered that the zemstvo movement is mainly expressive of the sentiment of the provincial nobility, and a movement which began as a labor strike is not likely to receive their sympathy or support. It is indeed possible that the affair may cause a conservative reaction, for if the movement spreads to the peasants the provincial nobility would find themselves in a position of extreme peril. The true parallel to the situation is not the condition of France at the outbreak of the revolution, but that of Prussia in the revolutionary movement of 1848, but it remains to be seen whether the ruling class will act with the sagacity and courage of the rulers of Prussia in the presence of emergency. A crisis has been reached in the internal affairs of Russia and while expectations of sudden revolution are not likely to be fulfilled, there is danger that the country may gradually decline into a state of chronic disorder bordering upon anarchy.

Hepburn's Rate Bill.

Representative Hepburn's bill to reorganize the interstate commerce commission with seven members at $10,000 a year and providing for a commerce court, to be composed of five United States district court judges, may be regarded as the administration measure. Its regulating provision gives power to the commission to declare what rate is reasonable when it is found, after full hearing, that any rate is not, and such rate shall become effective in 60 days. It also gives power to the commission to apportion joint rates in cases where two or more roads fail to agree.

It will be seen the bill covers the ground recommended in President Roosevelt's message. It differs from other measures proposed in the enlargement of the commission and advance in salaries of members; in designating district judges as a court to review decisions and in extending the time in which an ordered rate is to become effective from 30 days to 60 days. At least some of these points of variance are by way of concession to opposing railroads, particularly those of the west.

Aside from the spirit of conciliation there are good reasons for these concessions. Railroad tariffs are more intricate in their adjustments than those not familiar with the processes would readily suppose. Enlargement of the commission offers opportunity to secure the addition of competent experts to its membership, to reinforce the abilities in other matters displayed by the present commissioners. Two months is time enough for making readjustments in every case, while one month might not suffice in some. Thus there can be no just complaint against the per diem penalty for non-compliance within the specified time. Shippers cannot be seriously embarrassed by 30 days of delay, since the railroads are held responsible for resulting damages.

In the matter of creating the court of review the concession is on the other side. The bill of Senator Stephen B. Elkins proposed a special court with final jurisdiction. The Hepburn bill creates a court practically without additional cost, with privilege of appeal to the supreme court of the United States. The only possible objection to this arrangement is that decisions may not be as promptly rendered as by a special court. This is offset by the probability that a special court would have too little to do to justify the expense. Moreover, if the operations of the law create a larger number of cases than can be easily handled by the court as constituted in this bill, the special court can be readily substituted. The chances are the added power of the commission and the change in its personnel will have the effect of decreasing the total of complaints to be investigated.

Exonerating Judges.

So well is the legal principle understood that the accused should seek vindication at the hands of the power bringing the action, that even laymen will spend fortunes to clear their names when they are convinced of innocence. The United States senator under indictment will relinquish his seat and do all he can to facilitate proceedings in the court having jurisdiction of his case so that he may win the vindication to which he considers himself entitled. If he is an honest man he will avoid refuge in technicalities and spurn opportunities to escape without a direct meeting of the issue. One has a right to expect the same sensitiveness from a judge who expounds the law when the principle is applied to himself.

There are now two instances conspicuously before the public where judges have been accused and have the opportunity to clear themselves from all taint. For years Judge Swayne of the federal court has been subject to criticisms, but most of them were considered too partisan to deserve attention. Finally they became so serious that they could not well be overlooked by his political friends, and congress took the matter up. It is understood that he welcomed investigation, as his usefulness on the bench demanded his acquittal.

Contrary to this example is the history of a New York state case, where Judge Hooker of the supreme court stands accused of irregularities. The committee of the bar association investigated the charges and criticised the judge. The report was accepted by the body. When the matter of presenting the accusations to the legislature came up the friends of Judge Hooker rallied and secured a bare majority vote against such a proceeding. This leaves the judge in an unenviable position, for the charges are distinct and definite and ought to be disproved if he remains on the bench.

Dr. Wiley's Discoveries.

Dr. Wiley's experiments with food preservatives have entertained the country during many months. He began with boracic acid and he has run the scale down to formaldehyde. His young men, known popularly as the "poison squad," have endured the greater part of those things that come to the stomachs of diners at the quick action restaurants which dot the land and deal out dyspepsia to countless millions without extra charge. Their experience with each "proving" have been carefully noted and will ultimately form the basis for food legislation.

During the three months of the administration of formaldehyde it is said the "poison squad" acquired a habit of dreaming about pink monkeys, green elephants and gold-banded hippopotami not mentioned in the zoologies. Before the experiments had ended some of the young men had begun to see these things while awake.

It is encouraging to note in this connection that Dr. Wiley has not permitted any members of the squad to assist in his contemporaneous investigations into the quality of liquors made and sold in this country. A steady diet of whisky has a tendency to produce tinted animals and serpents of ferocious mien. But Dr. Wiley is sure his milk and formaldehyde consumers have not had their drinks mixed. The colored elephants and other Sunday supplement features are due wholly to a common adulterant of public milk supplies. It is time for national pure food legislation to protect the innocent.

The Times murders the old proverb and outrages President Roosevelt's accurate rendition when it quotes: "Tread softly and carry a big stick." There is a world of difference between the stealthy approach with malicious intent, pictured by the Times, and the president's application of the proverb: "Speak softly and carry a big stick; you may go far." Peacefully disposed, but ready for defense is Mr. Roosevelt's motto.

Old maids in Germany want legislative permission to prefix "Frau" to their names, the equivalent of "Mrs.," instead of "Fraulein." Why not compromise on the abbreviation "Fr."?

There is not much in the special railroad plea that any intelligent man cannot, after full hearing, distinguish between a rate that is reasonable and one that is not.

Whatever may be said of the Carnegie benefactions in general, the opinion is unanimous that the relief fund is doing a blessed work.

There will be no strike on the Pennsylvania railroad, despite the efforts of the Philadelphia North American, and the public is glad.

Talked of in Gotham

By FRANK A. PARKER.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Terrorized by a series of bold daylight holdups, and despairing of police protection, residents of Fifth avenue and the upper West Side have taken upon their own shoulders the work of guarding their homes against robbers. Hundreds of homes have been fitted with chain-locked front doors, and servants have been instructed never to open the door unless the safety chain appliance is in position. This apparatus permits the door to be opened only a few inches, and an intruder can under no circumstances force his way inside. House owners do not relish the idea of coming face to face with a robber and a six-shooter after the servant has announced that there is a visitor in the front parlor. To be held up in one's home, they say, is to be placed at a disadvantage which cannot be overcome.

Together with a great sale of chain locks during the past week, hundreds of revolvers have been made a part of household appointments. The weapons are usually kept in the hall, and in some instances are used by the servants in connection with the chain lock.

Although all these precautions are being taken, the "reign of terror" is precipitating a crisis in the servant problem. Scores of servants have left good homes to escape from the sections of the city which they believe have been marked by robbers for plundering. The police say that one man is responsible for all the holdups, but residents on Fifth avenue and Riverside drive are certain that a gang of western desperadoes, experts in gun play and a quick change of dress, has descended on New York and is making a farce of police protection.

Millions Spent for Automobiles.

Never in the history of the automobile industry have so many machines been sold in so short a space of time as within the last fortnight. During the period of the two local shows more than $12,000,000 worth of motor vehicles were disposed of, while negotiations were entered into that will probably result in the disposal of nearly as many more before the opening of the riding season. At the Importers Automobile Salon the sales to individual buyers total nearly $2,000,000, and with two days more to run it is probable that that figure will yet be exceeded.

At the show of American cars in Madison Square garden, which closed last night, it was computed that upward of $10,000,000 was represented in the sale of machines during the week. Most of these, however, figured in contracts between manufacturers and dealers, and the amount of money expended by individual automobilists was probably less than in the foreign show. In the latter the sale of Mercedes heads the list with 42 actually disposed of and several others ordered.

Dress Reform for Jersey.

Jersey City's 600-odd women teachers are up in arms at the threatening possibility of having to discard long, trailing skirts in favor of rainy-day skirts for school wear. The possibility has not assumed more tangible shape as yet, for there is yet to be found a school board official brave enough to attempt the reform. The trouble started at a dinner given by President John H. Ward of the board of education to his colleagues on the school board and to friends. After cigars had been lighted William G. Nelson, business partner of Mr. Ward, made a short speech, during the course of which he said that inasmuch as New York was in the throes of reform, why not start a little reform in Jersey City? Mr. Nelson directed his criticisms toward the school teachers who swept into school wearing long, trailing skirts that carried microbes in to the detriment of their health and that of their pupils. He recommended short skirts. One young teacher when asked about the matter said that she would be willing to wear any kind of skirt the board decreed. She intimated that a few "old frumps" might not like to appear in short skirts, but that the young teachers would just as soon.

Sweet Singers Coming from Ireland.

Three thousand thrushes will be imported from Ireland to furnish a novel musical feature of the Irish ball to be given in Madison square garden on March 13 by the representatives of the 32 Irish county organizations in New York. The birds are being selected from various parts of Ireland. They will be placed in groups throughout the big building so that those who attend the ball can hear during the lulls in the dancing the trills of the songster from their native woodlands. The proceeds of the ball will be used in endowing beds in hospitals for Irish men and women.

"Layout" Makers Will Be Busy.

The smashing of $50,000 worth of gambling apparatus and devices by the district attorney means boom business with the manufacturers of such articles, not necessarily because the present war on gambling is expected to let up and the playing to be resumed, as has been the case after previous crusades, but because much of the apparatus destroyed took its turn in the season's playing at the various out-of-town summer resorts. New apparatus will be needed by the time the summer season opens.

The manufacture of the devices used in gambling is not, like the manufacture of burglars' or counterfeiters' instruments, carried on in secret and in fear of police spoliation, but as openly as that of billiard tables or hymn books. Many of the layouts, wheels, card tables, etc., seized by District Attorney Jerome's men are plainly marked by the makers with their trade marks, names and business addresses, as it is no crime to manufacture gambling devices, only to use them.

Dr. Gladden Prefers Poverty.

Riches were described as an obstacle to human happiness and righteousness by the Rev. Dr. Washington Gladden of Columbus, O., in a sermon to the congregation of the Broadway tabernacle in Mendelssohn hall this morning. He declared that the poor man is happier on the average than the rich man, because the latter is more prone to selfishness, which, he said, results in trouble, worry and unrighteousness. Dr. Gladden's text was "My yoke is easy and my burden light." He said in part:

"Pause and consider what the conditions of life would be if Christ's law were strictly carried out by all men," he said. "I believe the day is coming when men will not want to hurt and destroy and the world will be full of God's peace. The unselfish life is easier to live here and now in this great city than a life of greed, strife and selfish endeavor. There is less pain and struggle and worry in it than in the other, less fretting and trouble. As between the man with great material goods and the man with little, the balance of happiness is with the poorer."

The Quiet Observer.

By ERASMUS WILSON.

And thus from day to day we live,
From others take, to others give,
So live that they who meet with thee
May better, truer, nobler live.
—Montreux.

That sounds like good advice, and so it is, but advice is cheap, awfully cheap, and much easier to give than to take.

Even those who are loaded with it and seem to be ever on the lookout for those upon whom they may unload it, are not much given to using their own stuff.

It is for this reason that the advice-giver doesn't stand on the top round in the estimation of the populace. His stuff is too cheap to be good.

The advice that you have to pay for is the sort that you will heed, even though it isn't a whit better than that given without price and for which the giver wouldn't take a cent.

You may have at some time in your life chased off to a fortune teller and cheerfully laid down a share of your hard-earned wealth just to get a few words of advice, together with a lot of stuff concerning your love affairs. The fact that she didn't tell you true about your love affairs, nor give you good advice, you have gone back to her, or gone to someone else, and paid more good money for that in which you had no faith and couldn't accept as being of any value.

* * * * *

There is just one sure and safe way in which to get along in this world, and that is the good old way: "Be sure you are right; then go ahead."

But how are we to know when we are right? Not by listening to one and that one, but by considering our own feelings and consulting our judgment. This is much safer than to listen to cheap advice.

If you have a wise and trusty friend you may ask him for his opinions, stating your case fairly and clearly. Or if you are in doubt on certain legal, financial or business points, first have these made clear by someone who knows what he is talking about. This will prove the cheaper way, even though you have to pay for the information.

It isn't good policy to depend upon others doing things for you. They may do you all right, but hardly in the way you hoped they would.

You may not have noted it, but it is a fact that if you hustle around and get a job for someone who says he has been looking for work for a long time, that same fellow is very apt to look to you to keep him where you placed him, and to see that he is promoted, and all that.

You may have discovered also that if you go bail for a fellow he is apt to get into still worse scrapes and expect you to help him out.

There are a great many hearty, shapely men and women who cannot stand being helped. It seems to swell them up and encourage them to depend upon being helped rather than upon helping themselves.

Helping such as these is not judicious philanthropy, for in so doing you only render them more helpless, or rather more dependent.

* * * * *

Do it yourself and you will feel a whole lot better, even though it doesn't amount to much, than if you had been helped.

You may have heard men spouting fine speeches which were not their own, and you knew they were not, and they knew they were not. Did these speeches, although teeming with strong arguments and fine points, change your views or enlighten your mind?

Fine as were the speeches, some clod-hopper might, in a few awkward but original sentences, knock them higher than Gilroy's kite.

Do it yourself, for the honest, earnest doing of things is what counts.

This has been most happily set forth by one of our living poets in the following clever lines:

THE THING THAT COUNTS.

Did you tackle that trouble that came your way
With a resolute heart and cheerful;
Or hide your face from the light of day—
With a craven soul and fearful?
Oh! a trouble is a ton, or a trouble is an ounce,
Or a trouble is what you make it;
And it isn't the fact that you're hurt that counts,
But only—how did you take it?

You are beaten to earth? Well! Well! What's that?
Come up with a smiling face.
It's nothing against you to fall down flat,
But to lie there—that's disgrace.
The harder you're thrown, why, the higher you bounce;
Be proud of your blackened eye!
It isn't the fact that you're licked that counts;
It's how did you fight—and why?

And though you be done to the death, what then?
If you battled the best you could;
If you played your part in the world of men,
Why, The Critic will call it good.
Death comes with a crawl or comes with a pounce;
And whether he's slow or spry—
It isn't the fact that you're dead that counts,
But only—how did you die?
—Edmund Vance Cook.

* * * * *

True it is that we may not be understood by some, even by many, but some there are who can and who will understand if we are only earnest and put our hearts into our work.

The fellow who shovels cinders and trundles a wheelbarrow earnestly and honestly will find himself preferred to those who simply work against time. He may get the worst of it for a while, but not for long. Virtue and worth ever find ways to attract attention.

But do the best we may there is a possibility of our not being understood, at least for a time. This is not a pleasant thought, and yet if we clearly understand ourselves we may hope that there is One who will understand us.

NOT UNDERSTOOD.

Not understood. We move along asunder;
Our paths grow wider as the seasons creep
Along the years; we marvel and we fall asleep
Not understood.

Not understood. We gather false impressions
And hug them closer as the years go by.
Till virtue often seems to us transgressions,
And thus men rise and fall and live and die.
Not understood.

Not understood. Poor souls with stunted vision
Oft measure giants by their narrow gauge.
The poisoned shafts of falsehood and derision
Are oft impelled 'gainst those who mold the age.
Not understood.

Not understood. The secret springs of action
Which lie beneath the surface and the show
Are disregarded; with self-satisfaction
We judge our neighbors, and they often go
Not understood.

Not understood. How many hearts are aching
For lack of sympathy! Ah, day by day
How many cheerless, lonely hearts are breaking!
How many noble spirits pass away
Not understood.

O God, that men should see a little clearer
Or judge less harshly when they cannot see!
O God, that men would draw a little nearer
To one another! They'd be nearer Thee
And understood!

Williams Snubbed

By L. W. STRAYER.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Democratic members of the house of representatives are uneasy and will be until they know the outcome of the Democratic caucus that has been called for tomorrow evening. What they fear is that John Sharp Williams of Mississippi will tender his resignation as minority leader on the floor and insist upon someone else taking that honor. In fact Mr. Williams is responsible for the caucus being called, and the rumor has been circulated that he has decided to put away the crown and let another wear it for a time. Pique and resentment at the action of his Democratic colleagues is responsible for this determination upon the part of Mr. Williams, and it came about by them straying from his leadership and voting with the Republicans on Friday.

The army appropriation bill had been under consideration and among the amendments that had been proposed by the Republicans was one that prohibits retired army officers detailed with state troops from drawing a pay larger than that of their retired grade. This amendment was construed by the Democrats as a direct slap at Gen. Miles, who has just taken charge of the Massachusetts militia under the administration of Gov. Douglas. Not only did the Democrats place this construction upon the proposed clause in the bill, but they said so in terms that could not be misunderstood.

Where Williams Did Not Lead.

On Thursday Mr. Williams, in discussing this amendment, gave notice that when it came to a vote on Friday he would ask for a roll call, placing every member of the house on record in the matter. This notice was not only for the purpose of informing the house in committee of the whole of his intentions, but it was also for the purpose of notifying the Democratic members that they would be expected to line up behind their leader and vote down the amendment if they could.

When the amendment came to a vote on Friday it was adopted by a vote of 291 to 50, a large number of Democrats voting with the Republicans, evidently not being impressed with the charge that the majority was trying to impose a hardship on Gen. Miles or any other retired officer. Mr. Williams was mad all through. Not that he was so particular about defeating the amendment, as it would have been adopted even with a strict party vote, which was all that he could have asked after the charge had been made that the Republicans were trying to humiliate Gen. Miles. But there is nothing so embarrassing to a leader as to find that he is not leading, that his followers are standing still or moving in the other direction. This is what roused the ire of the southern member and led him to call a caucus of the Democratic members for Monday evening.

He didn't say he wanted the caucus for the purpose of presenting his resignation, or he would not have been able to get enough signers to the petition to call a caucus, but it was soon noised about the hall that John Sharp intended to resign and that is what is now feared when the caucus assembles.

May Yet Be Conciliated.

For the past two days his colleagues have been arguing with him and using every endeavor to get him into a good humor. Today it is reported they believe they have partially succeeded and they think he will not insist upon laying down the leadership, but they admit that it is not certain. Prominent Democratic members of the house claim there is no reason for the resignation of Mr. Williams; that the action of the minority in voting with the Republicans on Friday constituted no snub or offense to him, nor did it put him in an embarrassing position. They cite the fact that no question of policy was involved, that it was merely a question that each member had to decide personally and vote on as he thought best.

The leadership of the minority in the house of representatives is no small honor. It is a place that many men would be pleased to hold, though it is admitted that there is not a Democrat in the house more capable of filling it than the present leader, John Sharp Williams. By custom and precedent the minority candidate for the speakership becomes the floor leader of the minority. In the last congress this place was held by Representative Richardson of Tennessee, but he declined the honor when the Fifty-eighth congress was being organized. Mr. Williams had won such a prominent place in his party and in the deliberations of the house that there was not the slightest opposition when his name was brought forward for minority leader. He was nominated for speaker and polled the full vote of his party and upon the election of Mr. Cannon as presiding officer, Mr. Williams by precedent fell into the position of leader of his party in the house.

Leadership a Desirable Distinction.

This rule obtains just as does the one that the chairmanship of the committee on ways and means carries with it the honor of floor leader of the majority. And, besides, the minority is allowed a room which is used for caucus purposes and for meetings and which really amounts to a private office for the leader. A clerk is also employed there who acts in the capacity of private secretary to the leader. All of these little perquisites add to the desirability of the position, to say nothing of the honor of leading all the debates in which questions of party policy are involved and of shaping the course of the minority party in the house. But under the speakership of Mr. Cannon, the minority leader is given even wider power than he ever possessed before, and he is obliged to assume responsibilities that may not be always to his liking, but which add importance to his position.

"Uncle Joe," in making up the committees of the house, insists upon the minority leader naming the Democratic appointments. Of course all the committees have a majority of Republicans in their membership, but the Democrats are always eager to be appointed on the best and most important committees.

"Uncle Joe" Knows His Business.

When a Democrat at the beginning of this congress would come after Speaker Cannon with a request that he be placed on a certain committee, the speaker would say to him:

"Now, have you talked to Williams about it? No? Well, just run around and get John Sharp to consent and we will take care of you all right."

It was a great scheme. While it made Mr. Williams the real leader of his party, one who could make or unmake committee assignments, it also relieved "Uncle Joe" of a great deal of worry, which was thus shifted to the shoulders of his young friend from Mississippi.

If John Sharp Williams resigns his leadership in the house the Democrats in that branch of congress will suffer a distinct loss and there are many Republicans who will tell you in all sincerity that the country will suffer a loss as well. Always alert, he knows what is going on all the time, and if, as is claimed, the deterrent effect of a strong minority is a good safety valve in all legislative bodies, then Mr. Williams is the right man to wield that influence. He is not quarrelsome and violently partisan, but he never runs away from a fight. There is not a better rough-and-ready debater on the floor of the house than he, and none whose words are more carefully listened to.

Always Loyal to His Party.

He was educated at Heidelberg, where he once unintentionally offended a German student, who promptly challenged him to a duel. John Sharp didn't want to fight, but when it was explained to him that he must accept the challenge or be disgraced, he said he would fight. As the challenged party he had the right to select the weapons, and he chose pistols at eight paces. The German substituted the usual fake duel with swords, by which Heidelberg students back each others faces, and when Williams' answer was reported to him he decided that the offense was not so great after all, and that he was not so thirsty for blood. The duel was called off.

Mr. Williams is a close student of political economy. Thoroughly grounded in the principles of old-time Democracy, there are many things about the modern brand that he does not admire. But he is a Democrat whose loyalty cannot be questioned and under whose leadership the minority makes itself felt in congress. Personally he is one of the most popular men in the house and there are no two men better friends than he and "Uncle Joe" Cannon. Not an opportunity comes but they throw bouquets at each other, and the mutual admiration is thoroughly shared by their colleagues. The result of this personal regard between the speaker and the minority leader has been to relieve the deliberations of the house of much of the intense partisan feeling that has prevailed heretofore.

CONTROLLER IS MAKING THREATS

Larkin Fears Administration Is Not Going to Cut Out Filtration Item.

MATTER IS UP TO MR. RODGERS

Controller Larkin says he believes the city administration is not going to strike out of the appropriations for 1905 $366,666 to pay the sinking fund charges and first year's interest on the proposed $5,000,000 filtration bond issue, and he declares that if this item is not left out of the bill he will have nothing further to do with the appropriations and tax levy and will wash his hands of the whole matter.

Director Bigelow said yesterday that he would abide by the decision of Solicitor Rodgers, as stated in The Gazette Saturday morning. Controller Larkin said yesterday he believed the administration intended to leave the appropriation for filtration bond issue in the bill, after a tacit agreement to the contrary on Friday.

"I told the administration people that I was not depending upon them to re-elect me," said the controller, "and that my re-election was totally apart from my work on the appropriation and tax levy bills. I told them if this appropriation for the filtration bond issue was not cut out I would wash my hands of the whole thing. I told them to keep this item in the bill would be a fraud upon the people.

Says It Would Be Fraud.

"It would be a fraud because the bonds cannot possibly be issued until after October, for the mandamus suit pending against me in the county court cannot be decided by the supreme court before that time, and it would be too late then for any appropriation for the bonds to be made this year. My purpose is to hold back any sinking fund or interest charges for filtration until the appropriations for 1906 are made. That will be ample time and it would be wrong to do otherwise.

"There is now $2,100,000 in the city treasury from the last bond issue for filtration, and this is enough to carry on any work that may be done this year. If more money should be required I can produce five bankers who will pay all estimates of contractors as fast as they come in without any bond issue.

"While I am controller I propose to exercise every function belonging to the controller's office, and those who don't approve my course should vote for my opponent. I am confident I will win the filtration suit, but if the courts decide against me I will offer no further opposition but will advertise, issue and countersign the bonds without delay."

Rodgers to Decide Today.

Solicitor Rodgers is expected to give his opinion on the proposition to cut out the $366,666 filtration item this afternoon at the meeting of the sub-committee on appropriations.

Mr. Larkin said he had revised the appropriation bills by cutting the appropriation of the public safety department about $100,000, the public works department about $200,000, and also cutting out the $366,666 for filtration charges and special items which he called "pockets." He said he had increased the revenues over $100,000 by including $54,500 from the sale of the First ward engine house property, also a balance of $55,000 from last year's school appropriations and a number of smaller items.

The fire appropriation was cut from $635,000 to $600,000, the police appropriation was practically left untouched and the appropriation of $467,000 for highways and sewers was not changed.

WITTE TELLS EDITORS HE CAN DO NOTHING

Delegation Anxious to Avoid Bloodshed Is Rebuffed on All Hands.

[Associated Press Cable to The Gazette.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 22.—Two hundred journalists and professional men met in this city Saturday to discuss means to avoid bloodshed. A committee was appointed to interview Minister of the Interior Sviatopolk-Mirsky. They arrived at the ministry of the interior at 10 o'clock last night, but were received coldly, the officials there declaring that it was impossible for them to see the minister that night.

Thus rebuffed the committee proceeded to M. Witte's residence. M. Witte received them affably and offered them tea, which they declined. Having heard them, M. Witte expressed himself with great sympathy, but maintained that all measures had been decided without consulting him, saying:

"I am nothing in administration."

M. Witte then referred them to Minister Sviatopolk-Mirsky, regretting his inability to do anything and advising them to get the demonstration abandoned. He said the emperor could only receive a deputation by application through proper channels. He then telephoned to Minister Sviatopolk-Mirsky and tried to persuade him to receive the committee. The minister, however, still declined, and the deputation departed.

Late tonight at a conference of editors of St. Petersburg newspapers it was agreed to address to the censorship administration a protest against the censorship of the day's events, and it was also resolved to send a deputation to negotiate with the workmen's union regarding the resumption of work by the printers.

HOLMES' JANITOR ALIVE?

Chicago Police Think They Will Soon Catch Keeper of Notorious Death Trap.

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—Police officials believe that they have at last discovered the identity of the missing janitor of "Holmes Castle," where so many women are said to have been murdered several years ago by H. H. Holmes, who was afterward hanged in Philadelphia. Detectives working on the case of John Hoch, accused by his wife of poisoning her sister two days before his marriage to herself, have come to the conclusion that Hoch is none other than the janitor who suddenly disappeared after testifying in behalf of Holmes when the latter was being tried on a murder charge.

Hoch, according to the police, answers the description of the missing janitor in every detail and a determined effort is being made to effect his capture.

PUT BULLET IN HIS HEAD.

Second Attempt of Michael Klasmith to End His Life Was Rewarded With Success.

Michael Klasmith committed suicide in an alley in McKeesport yesterday, by shooting himself in the head with a 42-caliber revolver. He had been despondent. About six weeks ago he attempted to take his life and was sent to the workhouse. Two days ago he was released. He wore no undergarments and the condition of his body indicated that he had suffered from cold.

Pietro Giavani, aged 35, was killed yesterday at the National tube works, McKeesport, by a piece of pig iron falling on his head.

James Moore, a negro, aged 11, of Carnegie, died from a hemorrhage of the lungs yesterday morning.

William Sherman Barr, aged 40, of 624 State street, McKeesport, died at home yesterday of heart disease.

TWO HUNDRED RUSSIANS KILLED IN THE CAUCASUS

VICTORIA, B. C., Jan. 22.—Capt. Orian Culien, representative of the Imperial Marine association of Tokyo, received a cablegram from Constantinople tonight that 1,500 Circassians had revolted and killed the Russian guard, numbering 200, at Shaviri, in the Caucasus, and that Russians and Turks in large numbers were crossing the frontier into the Caucasus to spread revolution in Tiflis province. Tiflis city is practically in a state of siege.

WYMAN DEFEATED IN EVERY CONTEST

Candidates Supported by Allegheny Administration at Primaries Invariably Beaten.

MANY ANXIOUS ABOUT JOBS

The primary election in Allegheny Saturday produced several surprises that were discussed in a lively manner yesterday wherever politicians gathered. The utter rout of the Wyman candidates where the administration made fights against the Republican organization men shows the relative strength of the machine and the organization. In every instance where the payroll took up the fight of a man chosen as an administration candidate, defeat met the latter.

Fred Tschume, whose affiliation with the city hall crowd got him into an entanglement with the license court and resulted in the loss of his wholesale license, was beaten by P. C. Rafferty in the fight for select council in the Fourteenth ward. Tschume threatens a contest. Thomas McBride defeated Dr. H. E. Campbell for select in the Fifth. In the select fight in the Fifteenth ward Enoch James won over Harry B. Naylor, and in the Eighth, where Wyman supported James L. Kelly for re-election, Adam Schnitzer won with a good majority.

Second Ward Was No Surprise.

In the Second ward there is no surprise at the defeat of Councilman William A. Ford and William E. Kimberlin. Both were cut by the Republicans and the administration workers. Kimberlin's brother, George, is meat and milk inspector, and another brother, John, is assistant superintendent of the bureau of water assessments. Wyman is offended with the two because they would not go into a fight against Francis J. Torrance for select council.

The strength of the payroll was shown by the vote given Samuel McElroy in the second ward. McElroy just managed to win and had the support of Wyman and his workers.

Candidate for the Presidency.

Mr. McElroy announced last night to The Gazette that he will be a candidate for re-election as president of common council. Mr. McElroy succeeded Senator John M. Goehring as chairman of the common branch and has served for the past three years. No other candidates have been spoken of as yet.

The open spots in the primaries made by the districts that were held out Saturday night were closed up yesterday. In the Fourth ward the Ninth district was missing until yesterday. When it came in it gave the fourth place on the common council ticket to Charles Murray. Without this district Murray had 495 votes and P. A. Bengoon had 573. The Ninth gave Murray 350 votes and Bengoon 18, making Murray's total 841 and Bengoon's 591. The other nominees are Daniel Malie, Herman Bloedel and W. H. Harvey.

The Eleventh ward nominees for common council are Edward G. Lang, B. J. Casement and William Morrison. They had no opposition.

Contest in the Twelfth.

The Twelfth ward developed a contest. The returns gave Frederick Herring 680, John G. Stewart 404 and William H. Sarver 444. There are two to nominate and this made Herring and Sarver the winners, Stewart being 40 below Sarver. Yesterday Stewart set up the claim that the report from the Fourth district was wrong and that a correct return would give him a lead of 20 over Sarver. There will be a contest. The only report the city committee has received from this district came in over the telephone Saturday night.

For school director in the Fifth ward William Pennington, John Ommert, Miss Kate C. MacKnight and J. R. Reed were nominated. The ticket used read "four to elect." There are two full and two short terms to be filled and it was said last night that the ward committee would assign Miss MacKnight and Reed to the short terms.

In the Eleventh ward I. N. Morrow was nominated for assessor and Jacob Wittmer for constable.

HAVE PROBABLY ESCAPED.

Survivors of Yaqui Massacre Believed to Be in No Immediate Danger.

NOGALES, ARIZ., Jan. 22.—H. L. Miller and Charles N. Tolerton, who escaped in Thursday's Indian massacre in Sonora, Mex., passed through here today with the bodies of Coy, Mackenzie, Call and Steubinger, bound for Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Forshaw of Colorado were with the party on the outward trip, but left the main party before reaching Camp Toledo, and are now in camp and in no danger. Fred Garretson, wife and child, went over the same road last Wednesday or Thursday, but are undoubtedly safe at their camp. Garretson is from Buffalo and is engaged in mining in the Sahuarepa district, Sonora. A Mr. Pelletier, a mining engineer, recently employed by the Searasa Mining Company, is with Garretson.

All the mining men in the district where the massacre took place are coming in from camp, and the country will undoubtedly be in a feverish state for some time to come.

GIFT WAS NOT LARGE, BUT IT WILL HELP

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 22.—John D. Rockefeller has given $5,000 to Epworth Memorial Methodist Episcopal church, in this city. The gift comes as the result of an appeal from the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Ward Beecher Pickard, for help in reducing the church debt. Some of the more emotional of the congregation who heard the pastor's announcement at the services today, said, in a voice that was heard throughout the church: "Praise the Lord."

Mrs. Clara C. Stranahan Dead.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Mrs. Clara C. Stranahan, founder of Barnard College for Women, Columbia university, and long identified otherwise with the higher education of women in this country, died at her home in Brooklyn tonight of apoplexy, aged 73 years. Mrs. Stranahan was the widow of James T. Stranahan, who from his benefactions and public spirit was known as "Brooklyn's first citizen."

One Hundred Mules Cremated.

EAST ST. LOUIS, ILL., Jan. 22.—In a fire which destroyed three large frame barns of the National Horse and Mule market today, with eight carloads of baled hay, nearly 100 mules were burned to death. The loss is $35,000, fully covered by insurance.

Joseph Marshall Wade Dead.

BOSTON, Jan. 22.—Joseph Marshall Wade, a well-known publisher of trade papers and a writer and publisher of many tracts upon occultism, died today at his residence in Dorchester, aged 72. Until recently he was identified with "Fiber and Fabric." He was a great admirer of the Japanese and their art, and this fact was recognized by the mikado in the form of a decoration in 1902.

Niedringhaus Still Hopeful.

JEFFERSON CITY, MO., Jan. 22.—There were few developments today in the United States senatorial contest. The Kerens men claim they will have one and perhaps two additional votes tomorrow. Mr. Niedringhaus maintains that he will win eventually and takes a cheerful view of the situation.

CHANGING MODE OF ASSESSMENT

Senator Woods' Bill, Much Altered, Will Be Presented in Senate Tonight.

KIRK ABANDONS ORPHANS

Senator William S. Woods will introduce in the state senate tonight three bills, one of them to revolutionize the system of property assessment in Allegheny county. References to the proposed act have been made in the newspapers, but the bill, as it will go to the senate tonight, has been changed.

The county commissioners approve the bill. It will take out of their hands all the duties pertaining to the assessment of taxes, and will leave their time free to attend to their other duties. The new proposed system takes the method of assessing property almost entirely out of partisan politics, as it gives to the common pleas courts the appointment of the men who will have, subject to the right of appeal to the courts, the right to revise valuations on real and personal property.

The original bill provided for the appointment by the common pleas courts of five men to compose a board of assessments revision; the new bill provides for the appointment of a board of three men to serve three years, each member to draw an annual salary of $4,000. The act, if passed, will apply to counties containing a population of not less than 300,000 or more than 1,000,000.

Can Have Subordinate Board.

This board will have the right to appoint subordinate assessors at $3 a day, who will assess the valuations on real and personal property and report the result to the board. The board is required to set a time when anybody aggrieved at his assessment may appear in person or by attorney to argue for a reduction of the amounts. The board may increase or reduce the assessments submitted by the subordinate assessors, and from the decision of the board dissatisfied property owners may appeal to the courts that created the board. The bill abolishes the present ward assessors.

Senator Woods will also introduce a bill amending the act which forbids judges to inflict terms of imprisonment that expire between January 15 and February 15, by taking out that provision. The law was intended to prevent the turning out of convicts during the coldest weather, but is to be amended because, under the new commutation law, sentences expire at any and all times of the year.

Senator Woods recently introduced a bill giving to the courts the power to increase the number of jurors the courts are entitled to summon, but that bill will be cast aside and tonight he will introduce another, authorizing the courts to summon any number of jurors they may deem necessary.

Caused a Sensation.

David M. Kirk was nominated on Saturday night for school director by the Democrats and Citizens of the Twentieth ward, and his acceptance of the nomination has created a sensation. Mr. Kirk was an Orphan and the Orphans of the ward have effected fusion with the Republicans. The other candidates for school director nominated by the Citizens and Democrats are R. C. Clark and W. F. Campbell. Alderman J. D. Walker was nominated for re-election and J. F. Lawley for constable.

The Orphans of the Sixth ward have nobody to fuse with, and now they know why the Citizens and Democrats of the ward offered to let them have the nominee for constable only, when the Orphans met with the Democrats and Citizens to discuss fusion. The Republican committee, L. B. Cook, chairman, empowered to nominate a ticket, has indorsed this ticket put up by the Citizens-Democrats: School directors, Randolph Wagner and Edward Dunn; constable, Samuel A. Grier; assessor, James Poland.

BLAZE AT WILKESBARRE.

Loss Is $80,000, but Firemen Confined Flames to One Block.

WILKESBARRE, Jan. 22.—A fire which broke out at 11 o'clock tonight threatened destruction to the business center of this city. A general alarm was sent in and by effective work the firemen succeeded in confining the flames to the large clothing house of Simon Long's Sons, where the fire originated. This building was gutted and the entire stock destroyed or damaged by water, entailing a loss of $80,000, partially insured.

Adjoining buildings were only slightly damaged by smoke and water. The fire is supposed to have originated from an electric light wire.

STEAMER IS DISABLED; PASSENGERS SAVED

PORTLAND, ORE., Jan. 22.—The steamship George W. Elder, which left Portland last night for San Francisco, struck a rock in the Columbia river near Goble, 40 miles from here, about midnight, and stove a hole in her port side a short distance forward of amidships, and she sank in about 25 feet of water. The accident was caused by the rudders becoming fouled by a snag. Her passengers were brought back to this city.

January 23, 1905.—"Great line to run on, this," said the nickel-snatcher; "everybody's so polite; 'scuse me a minit, till I pull this safety switch. Th' aint no possible chance of an accident—have to be so careful. Now that Forbes street hill is real dangerous. I used to run on the East End lines, and I know. Now, when I took this run I got my life insured—'cause of what they told me; nothin' to it though; not one bit of danger; never was a person killed on this line. Great in summer—coolest ever. And Knoxville—finest place in town, all churches and nice homes, shady streets and clean as can be. FATHER GOPON MAN OF PURE PURPOSE

Leader of Russian Strike Believes in Cause and Is Idolized by Workingmen.

FEATURES OF HIS CAREER

[Special Cable to The Gazette.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 22.—The most interesting figure in Russia today is George Gopon, the young priest, said to be under 30, who is the leader in this movement of the Russian workingmen which already has cost many lives and which may, before it is suppressed, bathe Russia in blood, change the whole system of government of the great Russian empire and mark as important an epoch in the world's history as did the French revolution, to which the present movement in Russia bears so many startling resemblances.

Father Gopon is primarily an enthusiast, some may say, a fanatic; as was Peter the Hermit, Martin Luther and other men in history, who by their sincerity and fanaticism have made much of the world's history. He is absolutely sincere and without the idea of fear. He believes what he preaches with that perfect belief which causes conviction, and his followers trust and believe in him with blind faith. So far as can be ascertained, his life has been without moral blemish.

Whether he is the man of the hour who is to lead Russia into the promised land of political, religious and industrial freedom, the next few days will probably tell. He is a big man, physically, and handsome. If oratory consists in molding his hearers to his views, he is entitled to take high rank as an orator.

Arose from the Peasantry.

Gopon was born in Poltava, Little Russia, a peasant, and his boyhood was passed as is that of other boys of the peasant class in Russia. He early showed the possession of strong mentality and attracted the notice of some of the better people in the vicinity of his home. They decided he was worth an education and sent him to school and later to a seminary in Poltava. Here he showed that no mistake had been made by his friends.

He was an enthusiastic scholar and would undoubtedly have ranked high in graduation had he not imbibed liberal ideas with his studies, and thus brought down upon him the wrath of the authorities, by whom he was expelled for preaching better conditions for peasants and workingmen. After his expulsion he secured a position as a zemstvo clerk, which he held for a short time, when he decided to enter the priesthood. Because of his opinions, he was placed under limitations which did not permit him to hold a pastorate.

His socialistic ideals grew with his growth and some time after he had been ordained a priest, he wrote a book on "Christian Socialism," which not only was suppressed by the censor, but which brought him into even deeper disgrace with the authorities, ecclesiastical and political.

Took Interest in Trades Unions.

When trades unions were permitted by the Russian government as a sop to the growing discontent among the workingmen, Gopon became deeply interested in the movement and took an active part in the new trades union movement and has done much to unify and build up this force, which now threatens the whole fabric of Russian autocracy, and by his powers of organization, joined to an enormous capacity for work and utter disregard for his own comfort, his fiery eloquence and supreme faith, have made him the idol of the trades unionists and enabled him to bring about a condition of organization and the unity of purpose which makes this movement unique in the history of Russia, and has brought about by far the most serious crisis which has ever confronted the Romanoff dynasty.

A mark of his leadership lies in the fact that he has succeeded in imbuing his lieutenants with his own enthusiasm and singleness of purpose and while he is a priest of the orthodox workingmen of all sects, Catholics, Lutherans and Jews, orthodox Greeks and free thinkers, look up to him with equal faith and devotion. He accepts no money for his work and no sacrifice of his time or comfort is too great for him to make.

Is the "Beginning of Battle."

He is an ardent admirer of Toistoy and was publicly cursed by the priest of his native village because of his vigorous protests when the great philosopher was excommunicated. His favorite name among his followers is "Little Father of the Little Russians."

Father Gopon has sent the following letter to his lieutenants from his hiding place, whither he escaped after the fusillade at the Putiloff works:

"Dear Associates and Workingmen: After today we have no emperor. Innocent blood lies between him and his people. This, therefore, is the beginning of the people's battle for freedom. I bless you all and shall be with you tonight. I am now very busy.

"FATHER GEORGE."

BROKE INTO BARROOM: POLICE CAPTURE THIEF

Young Negro, Detected by Newsboys While Breaking Into Duquesne Hotel, Pulls Revolver on a Policeman.

James Wilson, 20 years old, broke into the barroom of the Hotel Duquesne at 2 a. m. today, stole some change from the cigar counter and was captured while pointing a pistol at Policeman Charles Lenkner. A confederate escaped.

Some newsboys, waiting for the papers to come out, were standing in Oliver avenue, had heard the crash of glass and saw the negro climbing into the barroom through the hole he had made in the window 10 feet above the street level. The boys waited until the man came out and Isidore Cutler asked him what he was about. For answer the negro drew a revolver and threatened to kill the boy. Then he went down the alley and turned south on Smithfield street.

Cutler, Moses Feinberg and William Moran followed him. Just then Policeman Lenkner came out of the restaurant under the Mellon bank. The boys called to him to catch the man, and Lenkner went for him. The fellow drew the revolver, but Lenkner seized it and wrenched it out of his hand.

The newsboys say that the negro evidently had a confederate, for while the fellow was climbing into the window another young negro, standing at the corner of Oliver avenue and Smithfield street walked hurriedly away toward Sixth avenue when the thief emerged from the window.

CZAR'S SOLDIERS MAY JOIN THE POPULACE

PARIS, Jan. 22.—The Temps' St. Petersburg correspondent tonight makes a graphic comparison between the position of Emperor Nicholas II. and King Louis XVI. on the eve of the reign of terror. After a careful analysis of the situation the correspondent concludes that most of the military forces of Russia will remain loyal to the emperor, although he foresees prospects of some of the artillery regiments playing the same role that the regiment of the French guards took on the fall of the bastile at the outbreak of the French revolution.

CZAR HAS MISSED HIS OPPORTUNITY

Dooms His Dynasty by Allowing Troops to Fire on His People.

VIEW OF REV. DR. KRAUSKOPF

The Pittsburgh Gazette Bureau.
Press Building.
PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 22.

"Today was the psychological moment for the czar. Had he been a great man he would have met it greatly and written a glorious chapter in his nation's history. But by allowing Cossacks to fire upon people clamoring only for liberty, he has missed his opportunity and doomed his dynasty. Autocracy will be overthrown. Russia will be free. It will cost much blood, but the gain will be worth the cost."

These are the words of the Rev. Dr. Joseph Krauskopf, rabbi of the Kenneth Israel synagogue. Dr. Krauskopf is as well equipped as anyone in America to discuss authoritatively the conditions today in the czar's dominion. He is thoroughly familiar with Russia, politically, socially and industrially, having made a study of that country several years ago when he traveled from Finland on the north to Odessa on the Black sea, and west through Poland.

Continuing, Dr. Krauskopf said there was no doubt in his mind that Finland and Poland would soon be in revolt and in case the present uprising should fail, "it will be but the stepping stone to another," he declared, "for it is history that when an oppressed people shakes off its lethargy and feels its might, nothing can prevent it from obtaining its rights. The fact that Russians, trained from infancy to look upon the czar as almost divine, have revolted against his power, is proof enough that they cannot now be awed."

Dr. Krauskopf expressed the opinion that the other large cities of the empire, Moscow, Toula, Nigua, Novgorod and other manufacturing centers would be heard from before many days. That the priest Gopon should be leading the revolutionists he took as an indication that the church is becoming dissatisfied, "and," he said, "when the church turns against the throne you can be sure the army is honeycombed with hostile soldiers."

He was not at all of the belief that revolution will bring a republic. "It may for a year or so," Dr. Krauskopf concluded, "but after that they would go back to monarchy, or a constitutional monarchy, with the Romanoffs still on the throne. Russia has not yet reached the point where it can cast aside the regal trappings."

PEOPLE AROUSED BY THE BUTCHERY

Clash With Cossacks on Seeing Dead and Wounded on Ground.

MASSACRE AFTER MASSACRE

[Special Cable to The Gazette.]
(Copyright, 1905, by New York Herald Co.)

LONDON, Jan. 22.—In the course of a lengthy dispatch from St. Petersburg the correspondent of the Daily Express says:

About noon the commander of the troops ordered the crowd in the great square before the Winter palace to disperse. They refused to do so and he tried a show of force by ordering the troops to fire two blank volleys, which rang out sharply in the keen air. Some of those in front tried to edge back, but they were pressed forward by those behind. The cavalry attempted to push the people out of the square by marching their horses at a walk. This also proved useless.

The bugle sounded, another volley came from the troops, and this time it was followed by the sight of men lying dead and wounded on the ground. With a roar of anger the strikers pressed forward. In an instant the Cossacks drew their swords and charged into the mob, slashing to right and left. There were cries and curses and a few Cossacks were unhorsed and thrown clattering to the ground. Another volley followed. Bloodshed had begun and from this moment St. Petersburg became a shambles. The square was not cleared until half past 2, and by that time the snow was trampled into slush and wet with blood.

Meanwhile there were terrible scenes in other parts of the city. In Admiralty square the Cossacks charged the crowd and a battalion of infantry fired ball cartridge into the dense mass of people killing and wounding 150 men and women. Storms of blasen arose from houses as the officers passed by with their regiments. People shouted, "Throw down your arms, don't fire on workingmen. Shoot your officers." In one case the soldiers really did so. This was at 12:30, when many thousands of workmen advanced toward Nicholas bridge, where they were stopped by cavalry and infantry battalions.

"Don't fire, don't fire," was the shout which came from thousands of throats, and people held up their hands to show they were unarmed. A couple of hundred soldiers thereupon threw down their rifles. Officers kicked and cuffed the men most unmercifully and drove them back to their work. Thereupon a battalion charged the crowd with fixed bayonets.

At 4 o'clock Nevsky Prospect was the scene of a fresh massacre, in which it is estimated that 300 men and women were killed and wounded. The infantry fired three rounds of ball cartridge on the crowd, who replied by throwing showers of stones at the officers. Thirty persons were killed outright.

GERMAN CROWN PRINCE AGAINST THE HEBREWS

He Applauded an Attack on the Jews. Similar Feeling in Court Circles.

[Special Cable to The Gazette.]

BERLIN, Jan. 22.—Once more a member of the imperial family has given proof of the anti-Semitic feeling which exists in court circles, and which causes the Jews in Germany grave concern. This time it is the Crown Prince William, who has clearly shown that he agrees with his father's opinion concerning Jews.

The crown prince was the guest of honor at a banquet given by the "Association of German Students" last night, and at which strongly anti-Semitic speeches were made. The newspapers all agree that the young crown prince gave the signal for strong applause when one of the speakers spoke of the Jews as "a curse to the German people," and said that he had never heard of a Jew doing any real work, but that all Jews made their living as parasites upon the nation and that the German government should follow the example of the Russian and strive to drive all Jews out of the country. No official denial has been made of these allegations, so they are probably correct.

WOMEN HURT TRYING TO HEAR THE NEWS

Chicago Ladies Anxious to Learn the News from St. Petersburg.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—Several women were injured here tonight in a stampede of thousands of excited Russian subjects who clamored for admittance to the West Side Auditorium to hear the news from St. Petersburg and to listen to an address by Mme. Katherine Breshkowsky, the Socialist worker. Before the doors of the auditorium were opened it required a detail of policemen to keep the crowd, which had swelled into the thousands, from stampeding and injuring those who struggled and pushed and were caught in a crush on the stairways leading to the hall.

When the doors were finally thrown open at least a score of women, who had fainted during the rush into the hall, were trampled upon and more or less injured before they could be rescued. All of the injured were taken to a nearby drug store, where their wounds were dressed.

NOT SIMILAR TO FRENCH REVOLT

Conditions in Russia Are Different, Says Senator Morgan.

VIEW OF A CONGRESSMAN

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 22.—Senator John T. Morgan of Alabama, who has represented his state in the upper branch of congress for 28 years and has been the leading Democratic member of the senate committee on foreign relations for many years, believes that the present outbreak in St. Petersburg is not important, that it will not continue long, that there is no parallel between this movement and the French revolution, and that the affair of today will have no appreciable effect on the Russo-Japanese war. Senator Morgan said:

"The outbreak in St. Petersburg today will not, in my judgment, spread into a general revolution and will have no effect whatever on the existing government. It may last a few days or even a few weeks, but the czar and his ministers, with a large military force at their command and in perfect condition, will soon quell all signs of revolt. There will be more bloodshed, probably some people will be struck through and others injured, but the storm will pass and former conditions be restored. The present form of the Russian government required too long a time in its founding and has been too long established to be overthrown in a day or a month or a year.

Not Like French Revolution.

"There is no parallel between the situation in St. Petersburg today and that in Paris in 1789, when the seed and harvest of the French revolution were sown and reaped so quickly. France then had not the strength of government that Russia has today and what is more to the point, Paris is France, but St. Petersburg is not Russia. So great and well organized is the strength of the czar's military establishment at home and so well prepared for outbreaks, that the present trouble in St. Petersburg will not affect the progress or hasten the termination of the war."

William M. Howard, member of the foreign affairs committee of the house, said:

"The news indicates an exceedingly serious state of affairs in Russia, but considering the vast resources of that empire it is impossible to make an intelligent prediction of results. On the one hand it is perhaps a fact that the Russian revolutionists have been making preparations for this outbreak for some years and are ready. It is evident that they have taken advantage of the straits in which Russia finds itself. On the other hand we must remember that what might be possible in a republic is not possible in a strongly centralized government like that of Russia. The Russian people are accustomed to being knocked down and dragged out and it may be that they will be forced to submit again. We will probably know soon what their powers for resistance this time are and then we can make predictions as to the stability of the Russian dynasty."

GERMANY HAS A SECRET FEAR FOR HER DYNASTY

Formidable Revolution at St. Petersburg Might Spread Beyond the Russian Frontier.

[Special Cable to The Gazette.]

BERLIN, Jan. 22.—Germany is aghast at the developments of the day in St. Petersburg and, if the truth is told, a tinge of fear is felt by official Germany that should the rioting in the Russian capital really mark the beginning of a formidable revolutionary movement, which will spread throughout the empire, that the movement may not stop at the Russian frontier, but that Germany may become involved and the Hohenzollern dynasty be forced to fight for existence.

The best opinion, even among the Socialist leaders who are in full sympathy with the movement of their fellows in Russia, is that the present uprising will be crushed before it reaches the dignity of even a possible revolution. The Socialists are horrified at the ruthless slaughter of men, women and children reported from St. Petersburg, but are unanimous in the opinion that this very slaughter marks the present movement as the beginning of better times in Russia.

The fact that the strikers and their sympathizers were unarmed and had announced their intention of making a peaceable demonstration makes the shooting of them, in the eyes of German Socialists, cold-blooded murder.

YOU CAN INTEREST HIM.

Any Man Over Fifty.

You can interest any man over 50 years of age in anything that will make him feel better, because while he may not as yet have any positive organic disease he no longer feels the buoyancy and vigor of 25 nor the freedom from aches and pains he enjoyed in earlier years, and he very naturally examines with interest any proposition looking to the improvement and preservation of his health.

He will notice among other things that the stomach of 50 is a very different one from the stomach he possessed at 25. That greatest care must be exercised as to what is eaten and how much of it, and even with the best of care, there will be increasing digestive weakness with advancing years.

A proposition to perfect or improve the digestion and assimilation of food is one which interests not only every man of 50, but every man, woman and child of any age, because the whole secret of good health, good blood, strong nerves, is to have a stomach which will promptly and thoroughly digest wholesome food because blood, nerves, brain tissue and every other constituent of the body are entirely the product of digestion, and no medicine or "health" food can possibly create pure blood or restore shaky nerves when a weak stomach is replenishing the daily wear and tear of the body from a mass of fermenting half-digested food.

No, the stomach itself wants help and in no round-about way, either; it wants direct, unmistakable assistance, such as is given by one or two Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal.

These tablets cure stomach trouble because their use gives the stomach a chance to rest and recuperate; one of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contains digestive elements sufficient to digest 3,000 grains of ordinary food such as bread meat, eggs, etc.

The plan of dieting is simply another name for starvation, and the use of prepared foods and new fangled breakfast foods simply makes matters worse, as any dyspeptic who has tried them knows.

As Dr. Bennett says, the only reason I can imagine why Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are not universally used by everybody who is troubled in any way with poor digestion is because many people seem to think that because a medicine is advertised or is sold in drug stores or is protected by a trade mark it must be a humbug, whereas as a matter of truth any druggist who is observant knows that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have cured more people of indigestion, heart burn, heart trouble, nervous prostration and run-down condition generally than all the patent medicines and doctors' prescriptions for stomach trouble combined.

CASSINI PRAYS FOR TORN NATION

Ambassador Joins Lowly in Supplication in Greek Church in New York.

HE LOOKS ILL AND WORN

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Count Cassini, Russian ambassador to the United States and friend of the czar, knelt with toil-worn sweat shop workers in St. Nicholas cathedral in East Ninety-seventh street this morning and prayed that the danger which threatens the Romanoff dynasty might be averted. Count Cassini remained in New York over today to attend the service of prayer and supplication in the Orthodox Russian church.

The diplomat occupied a seat close to the altar and remained on his knees during most of the mass, which, for aught he knew, might prove to be the requiem of a passing empire.

When the priest in his sermon passionately invoked divine aid for Russia and raising his arms dramatically, pleaded, "God save us, God save us," the lips of the aged statesman moved in murmured prayer as he added his supplication. Loyal subjects of the czar filled the church, and during the long sermon dealing with Russia's plight, they knelt prostrate except when they raised their heads to make their devotions.

Count Cassini looked ill and worn when he entered the church. His private secretary said he had not slept all night, but waited anxiously for news from St. Petersburg. He refused to make any comment on the situation upon his return to his hotel, the Waldorf-Astoria, saying the only information he had was contained in the press dispatches. He hoped fuller information would be awaiting him in Washington, to which city he returned tonight.

HOTEL CLERKS ORGANIZE.

Is Designed to Protect the Proprietors from an Undesirable Class of Patrons.

A meeting of the hotel clerks of the city was held last night in the Schenley to discuss the advisability of forming a permanent organization. Ernest H. Bennett, chairman of the organization committee of the Philadelphia Hotel Clerks' association, deputized by that organization to perfect a branch in this city, presented the plans for the work. The object of the association is to protect the clerks and proprietors of the various hotels from an undesirable class of patrons by means of reports of their actions, together with a description of the undesirable guest.

On February 1 a permanent organization will be effected, and it is expected that the membership will exceed that of Philadelphia, which is over 250. February 9 has been chosen as the date for a meeting of all the clerks of Pittsburgh and vicinity, at which time eight or nine delegates from the Philadelphia association will explain the work done in the cities already organized. Mr. Bennett says the intention is to form a national organization, associations having already been organized in Buffalo, Toledo and Philadelphia. Delegates are now working in New York.

A committee on organization, which will also arrange for a banquet and theater party on February 9, consists of George DeShields, chairman; F. W. Mayer, W. S. Hunt, F. J. Manjis, C. J. Ulery and L. A. McKee.

The unwarrantable attack of some editor upon the good name of a medicine which has been recommended by mothers and women in all stations of life, claiming that it contains 17% alcohol and other injurious ingredients, will be answered, for Dr. R. V. Pierce, the widely-known physician and founder of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y., has brought suit against the publication making this unfounded attack, claiming $200,000 damages. The sworn complaint shows that the statements concerning our remedy made by this publication are wholly and absolutely false in every particular, and that the medicine contains no deleterious ingredients whatever, and none of the ingredients stated in the article so published. If you question the purity of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription, send a bottle to the health department of your city for analysis. Dr. R. V. Pierce is a specialist in the diseases of women, and employed this Prescription in a large practice, and finding that it cured the diseases and weaknesses of women in almost every case, he put it up in a form that could be easily procured at any drug store. It has enjoyed the confidence of the public for the past thirty-eight years, and during that time has had a larger sale than any other woman's tonic, for almost every woman who has tried it recommends it to her friends. Dr. R. V. Pierce is willing to offer $1,000 reward to any one proving that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription does or ever did contain any alcohol or harmful drugs. This Prescription is nature's cure, because it is a pure compound of medicinal plants and roots, scientifically extracted and combined, intended for the one single purpose of curing female weakness and the pains and drains incident to that distressing complaint. One of the largest wholesale drug houses in this country, writing from Philadelphia, stated, that after their attention was called to the article in the publication mentioned, they asked the most prominent chemist in Philadelphia, Dr. Leffmann, to procure a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and report concerning the analysis. They say: "We received the following report:

"In response to a request from you we have tested a sample of the article sold as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and have not been able to find either alcohol or opium in the same."

Yours,
(Signed) HENRY LEFFMANN,
CHARLES H. LAWALL.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is so well and favorably known and has such a wide sale that its makers could not afford to allow such a charge to pass unanswered, consequently they have brought suit against the publication and will dis-prove the charges by competent chemists. Here is the result of another prominent chemist's analysis:

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 2d, 1904.

WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, City:

Gentlemen—Three original sealed bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription were purchased by me at different stores in this city. These samples have been carefully examined with the following results:

Each sample was tested separately for alcohol (ethyl alcohol) and each was found to be free from that substance. A sample, consisting of a portion of each bottle, was examined for the alkaloids of opium and for digitalis, and well-known and very sensitive tests show the absence of these substances.

The work mentioned has been thorough and I am certain that common alcohol, opium and digitalis are not present in the samples examined.

Respectfully,
HERBERT M. HILL,
Professor of Chemistry University of Buffalo.

Many women certify to the value of "Favorite Prescription," as well as some physicians:

DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.:

Dear Sir—I am not giving to writing very much, but after using a remedy for years with uniform success I think it not out of place to write a few lines regarding same.

After finishing my education at the old Missouri Medical College (the oldest college of any kind west of Mississippi River), in 1852, I commenced practicing medicine in this country. For a number of years I was very reluctant about using anything not strictly ethical, but for several years I have been using Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription with much success in treatment of the various female complaints. For young girls just changing to womanhood it is an excellent medicine to tide them through that change, and for all irregularities of the monthly period I find it the remedy. For pregnant women I use it to tone up and strengthen the delicate organs of generation. For ladies suffering about the change of life it is also a splendid remedy. I know there exists a prejudice with some doctors regarding the use of proprietary remedies, but after twenty years' experience, I have learned to use any remedy that will benefit my patients, which I consider the logical view a doctor should take on the subject.

Very respectfully,
LELAND WILLIAMSON, M. D.

We guarantee that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription does not contain alcohol, opium, or any harmful drug. It is a pure compound of medicinal plants scientifically combined. 'Persons making false statements concerning its ingredients will be prosecuted.

World's Dispensary Medical Association,
R. V. Pierce, President.

PITTSBURGHERS WILL AGAIN AID PRINCETON NINE---OTHER SPORTING

W. COSGRAVE MAY COACH PRINCETON

Pittsburgher Will Have Charge of Tigers If Hildebrand Is Unable to Again Take Position.

OUTLOOK FOR THE SEASON

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 22.—Wallace Cosgrave, 1904, of Pittsburgh, for four years middle fielder on the Princeton baseball team, will be secured to coach the Tiger diamond candidates in the event of "Doc" Hildebrand not being able to again coach.

The Tiger baseball candidates will begin work in about 10 days. Princeton's championship nine last season was nothing more or less than a nine. Of these nine men only four remain in college. Cooney, next year's football captain, will again be a candidate for the catcher's position. Capt. Wells will again be at second base. "Sammy" Reid, who for two years has divided honors with Wells as the Tigers' pinch hitter, will play third base, and Herb Byram, the Pittsburgh man, who last year won three out of four games with Yale and Harvard, and was Walter Camp's All-American pitcher, will again be out for the team when work begins in February.

These four men, with the addition of Ralph Bard, who has subbed in the team for two years, form the nucleus of the Tigers' baseball team for 1905. Capt. Stevens, Cosgrave, Davis, Underhill, Purnell and Forsythe, a strong substitute outfielder, were graduated last June.

The situation ahead for Capt. Wells is a difficult one. The shortstop and first base positions will have to be filled, and an entirely new outfield will have to be gathered together. The loss of Purnell at shortstop will be a hard one to make good, and the playing of Cosgrave and "Butts" Underhill in the outfield and on the bases needs little comment in Tiger baseball circles.

Princeton promises to be strong in the pitching department. In addition to Byram, who of course will have first call when the season opens, there are three other men who will make him do some hard work to keep his position. Don Doyle, a senior from Pittsburgh, has done good work for the last two years and much is expected of him this year. Doyle will make his fellow Pittsburgher hustle. Besides these two men, two new men will appear from the freshmen class with big preparatory school reputations.

There is Heiniger, Lawrenceville's big pitcher last spring, and Cook, the captain and pitcher of the champion Exeter team. Last spring with Cook and Walter Clarkson pitching, Exeter was defeated, 3 to 4. Clarkson struck out 12 Exeter men and Cook did the same for 11 of the Harvard batsmen. Cook comes to Princeton with a fine reputation and it is expected that he will live up to it. With this promising string of four twirlers, the Tigers' pitching staff looks better than at any time since 1900, when "Doc" Hildebrand played on the nine. No one has yet sprung up who promises seriously to rival Jim Cooney behind the bat.

For the first base position, left open by the graduation of Ralph Davis, are three promising candidates: Bard, a junior, who has been substitute first baseman two years, and Hamill and Bissell, both from the freshman class. Bissell is from St. Paul's, Garden City, and with Clough of Exeter, was ranked the best first basemen among the preparatory schools.

Capt. Wells, 1905, will be back in his old position at second, this year.

The outlook for a good shortstop is gloomy at present. Zahniser, a Pittsburgher, will be a candidate for shortstop, but he has thus far shown only fair ability.

Polo League Is Formed.

WARREN, O., Jan. 22.—(Special.)—At a meeting of the managers of the Warren, Niles, Youngstown and Ravenna polo teams held here this afternoon, a temporary polo league was formed. It was the intention to have the managers of the Cleveland, Beaver Falls and New Castle teams at the conference, but they failed to show up. It is likely that they will be admitted to the league later should they make application. A schedule between the teams represented was arranged and the games will be started this week. No officers were appointed at the meeting.

Wants to Fight McClelland.

ALTOONA, PA., Jan. 22.—(Special.)—The Bellevue Athletic association of this city is trying to arrange a fight for February 3 between Frank Boyland of Philadelphia, who knocked out Solly Stroup last Friday night, and Jack McClelland of Pittsburgh.

Manager Mason when seen last night said that his man Jack McClelland would be only too willing to meet Boyland, provided the Bellevue club would offer suitable inducements.

PROF. SNITJER TO LEAVE ALLEGHENY PREP SCHOOL

McMurray Elected Manager of Wilkinsburg High School Nine. School and College Notes.

E. N. Snitjer, physical instructor and head of all the athletics at the Allegheny Preparatory school, will sever his connection with that institution this spring, to enter a local business house. His leaving will be a severe blow to the Prep school for through his efforts the school has come to the front in athletics in its class.

Snitjer is a graduate of Yale and played on the varsity eleven and knows football thoroughly and his Prep elevens were well trained every year.

The Interscholastic baseball team will play at Grove City college Monday, June 12, and at Westminster college June 13 and 14.

W. G. McMurray has been elected manager of the Wilkinsburg High school baseball nine. A captain will be chosen this week. Of last year's team the following men are in school: Thounhurst, pitcher; Messner, second; Dipple, short; Bien, third; Marshall, left; Fleeger, middle.

Michigan seems to have a strong attraction for California athletes, and this year Martin, who pitched for Leland Stanford two years ago, and Finnerty of the Santa Clara Preparatory school are in college.

Sam Apperious, Georgetown's star outfielder the past four years and captain last year, will coach the team this season.

State and W. and J. may play a baseball game in Pittsburgh, May 17. State will be on a trip in this section and desires to play its old rivals here. The State schedule follows: March 31, Mt. St. Mary's, at Emmettsburg; April 1, Annapolis, at Annapolis; April 3, University of Virginia, at Charlottsville; April 4, George Washington university, at Washington; April 6, Washington and Lee university, at Lexington; April 15, open, at State college; April 21, open at State College; April 25, Dickinson, at Carlisle; April 26, West Point, at West Point; April 27, Fordham, at New York; April 28, Lehigh, at Bethlehem; April 29, Lafayette, at Easton; May 5, Dickinson, at State College; May 8, Villa Nova, at State College; May 17, Washington and Jefferson; May 19, California Normal, at California; May 20, West Virginia university, at Morgantown; May 29, Villa Nova, at Villa Nova; May 30, Princeton, at Princeton; June 14, Bloomsburg Normal, at State College; May 15 (commencement game at State College) open.

The Michigan athletic election resulted as follows: Football manager, J. N. Maynard, Grand Rapids, Mich.; treasurer, H. W. Clark, Las Vegas, N. M.; financial secretary, Claude Boynton, Muskegon, Mich.; interscholastic manager, Claude Kusterer, Grand Rapids, Mich.

The annual financial report shows that the earnings in football were $16,802 66 and the expenses, $8,990 14. All other branches of athletics suffered. Baseball brought in only $1,032 04 and cost $2,521 41. Track athletics came very nearly playing even. The receipts were $2,012 27 and expenses, $2,245 62.

PITTSBURGH LYCEUM TO HAVE BASEBALL TEAM

The Pittsburgh Lyceum will put a baseball team in the field this season. George Geisinger has again been placed in charge of the team. Frank Brown has been chosen captain. Brown, first; Shellady, second; Roehn, shortstop; Means, third; Lauer, middle field; T. Brown, right; England or McAteer, left. George Rodgers, who has been with Herron Hill for the last two seasons, may also be found with Lyceum when the season opens.

M'CLINTOCK IS SIGNED BY YOUNGSTOWN TEAM

How Maloney Saved a Close Game by Making Great Catch Off Shoe Laces.

George McClintock of Columbus, last year shortstop on the Homestead L. A. C., has been signed to play the position for Youngstown this season.

Jimmy McAleer says an outfielder shows his ability when he is able to come in at a 10-second clip and collect the ball off his shoe laces; when he can do this, then he is good for fast company. Billy Maloney, the Youngstown middlefielder, then should be in either big league. One catch of this kind saved Hogan's outfit from a defeat last summer.

The Interscholastics were playing Youngstown even one day, the score being 4 to 4 in the seventh inning. Two school boys were on the circuit, third and second, with no one out. "Ling" Moffit laced a line drive over second about three feet high. Maloney was playing a deep field, but he came in like a college sprinter and took the ball off his toes, doubling up the man at second. This broke up a batting rally and the home team won in the last inning 6 to 4.

The Tri-State magnates will meet in Harrisburg Friday night. Harry Davis, the Philadelphia American league first baseman, has a plan that will be presented. Davis wants to put a team in Reading composed of youngsters who do not make good in the big league. Reading people are interested in the plan. It is not known whether Lebanon will be in the league again. Reading, Lancaster, Pittstown and Brandywine want admittance. It is thought the season will start early in May and continue until September 20.

Shortstop Snedden of Grove City college may play independent ball next season. He is a good man.

The Elmira (N. Y.) team wants Jack Davis, the former Homestead pitcher.

Justice, second baseman, and Snyder, pitcher of last year's Newark (O.) team, have been signed by Akron.

"Slab" Burns and "Red" Garvey, pitchers who came into prominence with Pittsburgh college, are located in Sharon.

Catcher Stevens, whom Altoona has taken from Alliance, is said to be fast enough for the Tri-State.

Billy Phyle has an offer from the Findlay (O.) team to play third and manage.

Van Patterson, the Niles first baseman and catcher, will be with that team again unless he takes a club to manage.

Marty Hogan has about signed Mert Whitney, a first baseman from the Utica (N. Y.) club, when Hugh Jennings took him for Baltimore.

There is a letter at this office for Guy Anderson, the Hoboken pitcher.

Arranging Good Card.

The Business Men's club will hold its next show Saturday night. The management has some of the finest bouts yet arranged on the program. Billy Yourall will meet a hard man who will be secured. Louis Isaacs, the lad who won another contest the other night, will face a new comer to the boxing game here. Paul Moore will go against some one that can do 135 pounds. Tickets will be reserved.

Herron Hill Getting Started.

The Herron Hill A. C. will start to get its men ready for the Wilmerding A. C. tournament, February 22 and 23. Manuel of Herron Hill would like to meet Riley of McKeesport at the tournament.

WESTERN SKATERS MAY RACE HERE

Cream of Talent Likely to Visit Montreal, New York and Pittsburgh Soon.

AMATEURS TO COMPETE

The best skaters in the west may come to Pittsburgh to meet the stars of this section. It is planned by the Western Skating association to send a team east this winter to meet the best in the land. Pittsburgh is not the only towns on the proposed program, as Montreal and New York are also carded.

The championship races of Canada will be held at Montreal February 4 and if the western skaters are sent east they will go to Canada first. After this meeting they will go to New York and finish in Pittsburgh.

The plan is to take one skater from Minneapolis, one from Milwaukee and three from Chicago.

Manager McSwigan of Duquesne garden would prefer to have the western cracks here when the annual amateur championship races are held in the middle of February and this may be done, as about that time the western quintet will be returning home.

Skating races by amateurs should be a popular move in this city and it is likely more will be held at the garden.

ACORNS REORGANIZE.

Jesse Cullison Is Manager and "Butch" Kinney Captain—Many Candidates.

A reorganization meeting of the Acorn baseball club was held yesterday at its club rooms. Practically all of last year's team were present, and from appearances the management will have to pick the team from at least 18 candidates.

Jesse Cullison, manager of last year's team, was re-elected, while "Butch" Kinney, shortstop for the past two seasons, was the choice for captain.

During the past five years the Acorns have proved their mettle against the best amateur teams in this locality, and it is the management's intention to place a team on the field that will eclipse the great records made by any of its predecessors.

With Gorman and Kingelmaier the team is well supplied as to backstop material, while Garrison, Hurst and Lunn will form a strong pitching corps. The infield, with Cullison on first, Cooper second, Kinney short and Delaney third, remains practically the same as last year, Cooper being the only new man, while all of last year's team will be in uniform. Among the other candidates for positions are Steve Kinney, Lunn and Coakley.

ST. PAUL SEVEN WINS GAME FROM WEST POINT

WEST POINT, N. Y., Jan. 22.—(Special.)—The St. Paul's school hockey seven defeated the cadet hockey team here yesterday 2 to 1. Play was fast, but not unduly rough. The cadets were clearly outclassed in team work. Sumner, at goal, played his usual good game for the Army, and had his hands full stopping the accurate shots of the schoolboys. Richardson, getting the puck, shot the first goal from a scrimmage early in the first half. Bartlett evened the score shortly afterward, carrying the puck the entire length of the rink for the goal. In the last half the soldiers were unable to score. Coughtry shot the final goal for St. Paul's. The lineup:

St. Paul's—2.		West Point—1.
Garnett	Goal	Sumner
Partridge	Point	Tenney
Wheaton	Cover point	Park
Richardson	Forward	Bartlett
Coughtry	Forward	Murray
Ivins	Forward	Beavers
Davis	Forward	Rockwell

Goals—Richardson, Coughtry and Bartlett. Referee—Mr. Maynard, St. Paul's. Time—20-minute halves.

BRITT SUES JAMES COFFROTH.

Fighter Objects to Music Hall Poster and Asks for Damages.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 22.—(Special.)—"Jimmy" Britt has sued his old-time friend, James Coffroth, for $10,000 because Coffroth announced on big posters that Britt would appear as interlocutor at a minstrel show next week at Belvidere Music hall, of which place Coffroth is proprietor.

Britt wants $10,000 because of alleged misrepresentation. He considers that his reputation as an "artist" has been damaged to that amount, and says that he never gave his consent to being billed by the Belvidere people. Coffroth takes the matter as a joke. Last night injunction papers, signed by Judge Seawell, were served on him, and orders were given that the posters should be torn down.

MILLER TO HELP BUILD SPEEDWAY

Franklin Man Interested in Auto Course Along the Atlantic Ocean.

TRACK IS FIVE MILES LONG

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Charles J. S. Miller of Franklin, Pa., and a number of capitalists have formed the Atlantic Coast Speedway association to construct a five-mile automobile speed course on the Atlantic coast near Barnegat bay, midway between Philadelphia and New York. Ralph B. King of New York and Lakewood is secretary of the association; Maj. Miller, treasurer, and W. J. Morgan of New York, manager.

The land, comprising over 2,000 acres, has been secured and a further 2,000 acres will be leased for a general game preserve. The land will permit of a triangular speedway, 120 feet wide and five miles in circumference, opposite the grandstand, which will be built to seat 10,000 people, will be a straight mile course for the decision of international and national mile contests.

Water to the depth of six and eight feet will enable boat owners to land at the new clubhouse, which will be built, as the promoters intend to establish grounds that can be used for every popular national sport. Barnegat bay furnishing a splendid sheet of water for motor boat and other contests. Work will be commenced as soon as the preliminaries are arranged, and in 1906 the scheme may be ready for the public. One of the features of the proposition is to invite the colleges to decide their great annual matches on neutral ground.

FIGHT RECORD AGAINST GOTCH

"Biddy" Bishop Says Wrestler Made Poor Showing in Alaska.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 22.—(Special.)—If Frank Gotch, wrestling champion, is sincere in his desire to enter the ring and engage the best heavy weights in the country he will have to show better form than he did in one or two occasions when he fought for small purses in Alaska. "Biddy" Bishop, who invaded Alaska with his well-known middle weight, "Billy" Woods, says that when the wrestling game became quiet Gotch tried the floating business. From all accounts he was a decided "frost."

"The old-timers up there told me that as soon as Gotch got a stiff punch in the face he would get mad and quit," said Bishop. "In Dawson they wouldn't let counterfeit money on him, and they say I didn't know the first thing about Gotch. I heard many speak in glowing terms of him as a great wrestler, but I doubt that he would ever be good enough for a match with any of our first-class fighters."

WOOD SKATES IN FRONT.

Half-mile scratch (Monmouth County contest)—Won by Delford Fisher; Charles Wood, second; John Wood, third. Time, 1:13.

AMERICAN LEAGUE OPENING.

Boston Champions May Start the Season in Philadelphia.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—The New York Highlanders will open the baseball season this year in Washington. At an rate, that is the plan now laid out by President Ban Johnson. Boston in Philadelphia is the way he figures out the opening for the other two eastern teams.

This is hardly in keeping with the general routine of schedules. Two years ago, when the Highlanders became a reality, the Griffith set opened in the capital city. Last year New York was the scene of the opening game, and a day later Philadelphia fans saw their first game with the Highlanders against the Athletics. That left to make Griffith's boys begin the season in Boston.

However, Washington needs something good to start the season, and New York will serve the purpose, and if Ban Johnson says so, that is the way it is going to be.

RICKEY WILL CONTINUE TO COACH ALLEGHENY COLLEGE

MEADVILLE, PA., Jan. 22.—(Special.)—There is much rejoicing at Allegheny college over the fact that Coach Rickey has declared his intention to again coach the football squad next fall. Much anxiety had been caused by a rumor that Rickey had received a big offer from Ohio Wesleyan, but this matter, it is now feared that almost any offer from that institution would turn his head. He will coach the baseball team this spring.

THE SENATE WILL BECOME A COURT

Preliminaries for Swayne Impeachment Trial to Be Effected This Week.

HOPE FOR STATEHOOD BILL

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The United States senate this week will transform itself into a court of justice for the trial of impeachment charges against Judge Charles Swayne of Florida. Official information of the action of the house having been given, it is expected that notice of the senate's readiness to hear the charges will be conveyed to the house immediately after it convenes tomorrow. The managers on behalf of the house thereupon will present themselves before the bar of the senate and read the charges.

The next step in the process will be the organization of the court, but this probably will be postponed until Tuesday. Each of the senators will be sworn in by either the chief justice or one of the justices of the supreme court. Judge Swayne then will be notified that the senate is about to begin a trial of the charges against him, and he will be given a reasonable time to reply. It is understood that after the proceedings are begun they will be continued with as little interruption as possible until their conclusion. It is not probable, however, that the present week will witness more than the preliminaries.

The managers of the joint statehood bill are very hopeful of securing an agreement to vote on that measure before the close of the week. The opponents of the bill do not admit this possibility, but those senators who feel confident of the acceptance of some one of the amendments eliminating Arizona from the question, say that they will be prepared for a vote as soon as the discussion is exhausted. It is the intention of Senator Beveridge to keep the bill to the front as much as possible until it is voted on.

Unless legislation for government rate making for the railroads shall be injected into the house next week, the legislative work days will be devoted to the annual appropriation bills. No program for consideration has been agreed upon. However, the introduction of the Hepburn bill on this subject yesterday and the long consideration that has been given the matter in committee, indicate that the house soon will be asked to give consideration to the proposition.

FERVENT PRAYERS FOR THE CZAR AND PEOPLE

Offered in Churches in Washington. Count Cassini Refuses to Comment.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—In many of the churches today fervent prayers were offered for the Russian emperor and for his people. Intense interest in the struggle at the Russian capital was manifested.

Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, arrived here tonight from New York and was driven at once to the embassy, accompanied by Col. Raspopoff, the Russian military attache. The ambassador immediately upon his arrival received from a correspondent of the Associated Press copies of the dispatches which had come since the ambassador left New York early in the day. Disturbing as were the facts told in these telegrams Count Cassini was never more calm than as he carefully scanned their contents. Officially the ambassador has heard nothing of the situation and for this reason he would make no comment.

"Apparently there is a serious strike in St. Petersburg," he remarked, "but I have no news except that which has reached me in these dispatches."

Boys Are Charged With Theft.

The cash drawer in the store of Mrs. Mary Haney, 115 Anderson street, Allegheny, was robbed of $15, about 6 o'clock last night, while Mrs. Haney was at supper. Officers arrested Albert Moore, aged 15, of 225 East Robinson street; Louis Charles, aged 12, of 528 Voegtley street; Harry White, aged 14, of 211 Goodwin street, and Thomas Moore, aged 14, of 1223 Loraine street. Four boys were seen leaving the store about the time of the robbery and the above are said to answer their description. They deny they had anything to do with the robbery.

Were Trying to Sell Shoes.

Thomas Mercurio of the South Side and Joe Ross of Tunnel street were arrested in a second hand store at Wylie and Sixth avenues last night by Officer Philip Eckert. They had several pairs of ladies' new shoes, which they were trying to sell. They were locked up as suspicious persons.

FIVE THOUSAND WERE MASSACRED

American Consul Makes Report on Savage Cruelty Toward Armenian Christians.

NEED FOOD AND PROTECTION

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The state department has made public portions of an important report recently made by Dr. Thomas H. Norton, American consul at Harput, Turkey, on the results of a tour of investigation made by him, under instructions from the department, through the villayets of Bitlis and Van, which were the scenes during several months last summer of repeated attacks upon and massacres of Armenian Christians by the Kurds and other elements of the Moslem population. These disturbances, attended by frightful atrocities and savage cruelty, resulted in death, suffering and destitution.

The principal object of the visit was for better protection of American interests there, and the timely arrival of Dr. Norton, it is stated, contributed to a peaceful termination. No Americans were known to have been injured. Dr. Norton says Mush is practically an armed camp, where Armenians are in constant terror.

He estimates that in the Sassun district 5,000 lives were lost in last summer's massacres, including 2,771 children. Several thousand refugees who fled to Mush were forced to return to their ruined villages, where the vilayet authorities made an allowance of one cent a day per capita for food. The question for the moment, he says, is what is to be done to save the surviving population of Sassun, numbering 10,000 or more, from the results of insufficient protection and insufficient food.

He speaks of the American schools and institutions, and says the missionaries have much prestige. One salient fact, says the consul, is that the benevolence of the citizens of the United States has accomplished more than the efforts of other nations combined in advancing the material, intellectual and moral welfare of the Armenians and other classes in the interior provinces. Tribute is paid to the comparatively small group of American workers. He says the tide of emigration is directed almost exclusively to America, and that there is an increasing number of American citizens who have interests in the disturbed regions.

LITTLE LOOTING DONE SINCE THE OCCUPATION

Refugees from Port Arthur Testify to Honesty of the Japanese Victors.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

CHEFOO, Jan. 22.—Twenty-seven men and women, comprising the first party of refugees from Port Arthur, arrived here in a junk today. They stated that 22 other junks, bearing over 500 non-combatants, were also coming. Several launches immediately left with the idea of assisting the junks in reaching Chefoo. These refugees, including men, women and children, had been waiting for a steamer at Pigeon bay. They were without shelter and were obliged to sleep in the sand. The expected steamer failing to arrive, permission was secured for them to use junks.

The refugees state that since the first few days following the surrender of Port Arthur there has been practically no looting, the Japanese officers dealing sternly with all offenders. The Chinese were more culpable than the Japanese, who generally confined themselves to taking small articles, which they probably wanted chiefly as souvenirs. The consensus of opinion is that the soldiers behaved with remarkable self-restraint, compared with the conduct of others in similar situations in the history of wars.

Roughly estimated, 200 civilians lost their lives during the siege. The refugees generally exhibit no signs of ill-health from their subsistence on a restricted diet.

Amicable Aljustment Expected.

WILKESBARRE, Jan. 22.—The board of directors of the Wilkesbarre & Wyoming Valley Traction Company will meet in Philadelphia tomorrow in regard to taking action over the demands made some time ago by the motormen and conductors on the Wilkesbarre divisions, who have asked for an increase of wages. If no concessions are granted the men have already voted to strike. The general belief prevails here than the matter will be adjusted at the conference.

NOT DROP OF WATER TO SAVE BURNING HOUSE

Residence and Barn in Morningside District Totally Destroyed. Two Other Fires.

Without a drop of water being thrown upon the fire, the five-room frame dwelling and barn of John Roup in Janey street, Morningside district, was totally destroyed last night about 8 o'clock by a blaze resulting from a lamp explosion. The house and barn stood on the hillside about two blocks above Butler street, where the nearest water pipe is located.

Mr. Roup ran nearly a mile to the residence of Philip Dwyer, who turned in an alarm at the Sharpsburg bridge. When engine companies 9 and 26 arrived on the scene each company laid 1,500 feet of hose from Butler street to the fire. The icy condition of the road up the hillside hampered their efforts, and before a stream of water could be turned on the house and barn were almost in ruins. The pressure of the water was also very weak.

The Morningside district is badly in need of fire protection, the nearest engine house being about two miles away. The contents of the house were destroyed. The loss is estimated at $2,000, and the insurance at $500.

Box 387 was rung in at 8:46 a. m. yesterday for a small chimney blaze at the residence of Joseph Berwinski, Greeley street. There was no damage.

A still alarm was sent in to No. 5 engine company yesterday morning for a fire at the residence of James Jones, 81 Tannehill street, caused by an oil stove exploding. The damage was $150.

Miners' Convention Nearing End.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 22.—"We will finish our work tomorrow unless something happens during the day to prolong the session," said President John Mitchell today, speaking of the 16th annual convention of the United Mine Workers, which convened in this city one week ago. Nearly all the important legislative work has been accomplished and the few remaining hours of the convention will be consumed in the disposition of matters of form and routine.

Pastor's Installation Postponed.

The installation last evening of the Rev. J. Broeker as pastor of St. Mark's German Evangelical Lutheran church of McKees Rocks was postponed until next Sunday on account of a death in New York, where Mr. Broeker was summoned.

CALVARY PARISH IS 50 YEARS OLD

Celebration Began Yesterday With Special Services and Continues Today.

PRESENT SITE HAS BEEN SOLD

Pittsburgh's rapid growth and the great advancement in realty values in this section is well expressed in the announcement made from the pulpit of Calvary Episcopal church last night to the effect that the church site at Penn avenue and Station street, which was purchased by the congregation in 1859 for $600 and a yearly rental of $60, has practically been sold at a figure which may exceed $80,000. Contrary to recent rumor the purchaser, whose name will be made known within a few days, is not the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

The announcement of this sale came last night at the conclusion of the reading of the history of the parish by the rector, the Rev. Dr. J. H. McIlvaine, on the occasion of the semi-centennial anniversary of the congregation. Dr. McIlvaine also announced that a mission Sunday school would hereafter be conducted each Sunday afternoon in the Margaretta Street school house, with permission of the school board.

Three special services were held yesterday. In the morning the Rev. Dr. George Hodges, dean of the Cambridge (Mass.) Theological seminary and a former rector of the congregation, delivered a sermon on "The Idea of God." A large congregation was present and the church was beautifully decorated with evergreen, potted plants and cut flowers. In the afternoon a special musical service comprised the rendition of the sacred cantata, "The Vision of St. John," by a choir of 22 trained voices, under direction of Organist Gilden R. Broadberry.

Told Some Church History.

Last evening Dr. McIlvaine addressed an overflow congregation on the history of the parish. He stated that on January 1, 1855, a number of residents of what is now East Liberty secured an abandoned German Lutheran church behind a flour mill on Mill street, now Collins avenue, at a rental of $17 50 a month. The building was known as "the little old church behind the mill" and was destroyed by fire.

In the fall of 1855 members of the congregation met in a drug store at Penn and Collins avenues, adopted a charter and called the Rev. William H. Paddock as rector at an annual salary of $300. In the same year another building was purchased for $850.

Dr. McIlvaine gave a humorous account of the simplicity of the building, citing the use of lamps, the bringing of scores of lanterns to church for the congregation to find their way home, and the use of a modest rectory as a ladies' dressing parlor. On April 1, 1858, the Rev. Mr. Paddock was called to Tennessee, and in July, 1858, the congregation called Henry C. Potter, now bishop of New York city, at an annual salary of $500, payable quarterly. Bishop Potter was then a student at Greensburg, Pa., and did not accept the call.

The Rev. Robert B. Peet was then called and accepted the rectorship at a salary of $700. The present church site was purchased after a tavern standing upon it had burned. A church was completed in 1861 at a cost of $9,000, and has since been improved from time to time upon liberal expenditures. Originally it seated 250.

Contribution to Missions.

In 1866 Rector Peet resigned and the Rev. Joseph B. Wilson was called at a salary of $1,800. He accepted the call in May, 1867. Dr. McIlvaine stated that in 1874 the Rev. Mr. Wilson resigned to enter the ministry of the Reform Episcopal church. Friction arose in the congregation and many left to join the new church. The new congregation built a church at the foot of Denniston avenue, which is now occupied by the Consolidated Ice Company. "Some of those who left and returned still feel the effects," concluded Dr. McIlvaine.

In 1874 the present Bishop Boyd Vincent was called and found but 100 communicants left in the original congregation. In 1879 St. Stephens' and St. Phillips' missions were established by Calvary parish. In June, 1881, the Rev. George Hodges was appointed assistant rector at a salary of $3,000, which was later increased to $2,500. In 1889 Rector Vincent was made bishop coadjutor of Southern Ohio and resigned. The Rev. George Hodges succeeded him and resigned in December, 1898, to accept his present position. The Rev. William D. Maxon of Utica, N. Y., was then called and accepted the rectorship. He resigned several months later to accept a call to Detroit, and the Rev. Mr. Wightman was rector until 1899. The parish had no rector then for 18 months, but in 1900 the present rector was called.

In conclusion Dr. McIlvaine announced that the sale of the property included the right to retain the building for worship until April 1, 1906. Figures showing the growth in various branches of parish work were given. The first 25 years contributions of $135,000 were received and during the last 25 years $577,000.

During the day $500 was given in offerings for local missions. This evening the anniversary service will be held, when addresses will be made by former Rectors Vincent, Hodges and Maxon.

SMOTHERED YOUNG SONS; BURNED HOME; SUICIDES

Kansas Farmer, Summoned to Court, Ends His Existence in a Tragic Manner.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

M'PHERSON, KAS., Jan. 22.—Charles Tuxhorn, a farmer living 14 miles southwest of here, killed his two sons, aged 8 and 10, last night, burned his house and barn with all of their contents, and today shot and killed himself.

Tuxhorn smothered his sons to death, took their bodies to a neighbor's orchard, a half-mile distant, where he laid them on the ground and covered them with blankets. He then returned to his home and set fire to all of his property, after which he killed himself.

He had been arrested for mistreating his wife and children and was to have appeared in court tomorrow. He was 40 years old.

MAGLE FELL FROM GRACE.

Once Trusted Officer Now Spends Most of Time in Workhouse.

Casper Magle, for nearly 25 years a policeman in the downtown and Oakland district, was sent to the workhouse for four months on a charge of vagrancy by Magistrate Negley at the Oakland police station yesterday morning. Magle had only been out of the workhouse two days after completing a six months' sentence on a like charge. He is without a home and was picked up late Saturday night on Brady street, suffering from exposure.

Magle joined the police force shortly before the railroad riots of 1877, and was always considered an efficient officer until about two years ago. At that time he met with considerable trouble and took to drinking heavily. He only had a few months to serve until he would have been eligible to retire under the police pension fund provisions and he was given every chance by his superiors to complete his term of service, but without success. After nearly a score of warnings he was finally recommended for dismissal by the police board.

Warren Man a Pallbearer.

EAST HAMPTON, MASS., Jan. 22.—(Special.)—The funeral of Frank A. Leach, late professor of chemistry and biology at Williston seminary, was held in Payson church this afternoon. Minor D. Crary of Warren, Pa., representing Phi Delta Theta chapter at Amherst, was one of the pallbearers.

Must Answer in Juvenile Court.

Edward Johnston, a 15-year-old negro, was held for juvenile court by Magistrate Negley at the Oakland station yesterday morning. Johnston is alleged to have snatched a pocketbook containing $15 from Mrs. Mary Maloney of 2300 Fifth avenue, Friday night.

DENIAL IS MADE BY DR. WILEY

Tells Liquor Dealers He Did Not Say Most Whisky Is Adulterated.

BLENDED THE WORD HE USED

The Pittsburgh Gazette Bureau,
Room 16, Postal Building.
WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 22.

The story is false. Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, government chemist and expert on pure food and drink, says he never stated that 85 per cent of the whisky made in this country is adulterated. Nor did he say that the only pure whisky is that bottled in bond. This base canard that has been heralded throughout the country, coming as it did right upon the heels of the official pronunciamento that practically all the Scotch whisky sold over the bars of this country was a poisonous concoction of creosote, was calculated to spread alarm and consternation in many quarters.

A few days ago a delegation of the Wholesale Liquor Dealers' association came to Washington determined to show the senate committee on commerce that the alleged statements of Dr. Wiley were wholly without foundation. But first they decided to go direct to Dr. Wiley and interview him. He repudiated the statements attributed to him in terms that made them happy. What he had said, he declared, was that 85 per cent of American whisky is blended, not adulterated. Whisky is blended, be it known, by mixing ages, that is, for instance, by mixing 20-year-old whisky with 6-year-old whisky. Whether it is then sold for 20-year or 6-year whisky depends upon the seller. It is not adulterated. Corn and rye whiskies of decent ages may be blended and the result may be absolutely pure. The mistake had been made by some correspondent confusing blended with adulterated.

This explanation was wholly satisfactory to the delegation representing the Wholesale Liquor Dealers' association and they will not likely follow their original plan of taking the matter higher up. They had intended bringing it to the attention of Secretary Wilson of the department of agriculture, and if they were not successful there they would have taken it to the president. In view of Dr. Wiley's statement, however, this course is now unnecessary. L. W. STRAYER.

JESUS IN SOCIETY TOPIC OF PASTOR

Saviour's Presence at Many Modern Affairs Might Revolutionize Social Customs.

TRUE SPIRIT OF CHRISTIANITY

The Rev. I. A. Barnes, pastor of the Second Methodist Protestant church, yesterday morning preached on "Jesus in Society," taking his text from John ii:2: "And Jesus was invited." Mr. Barnes said, in part:

Our Lord was not a recluse like John the Baptist, living apart from the people, but all of His human life was spent in closest fellowship and sympathy with His fellow-men. And during His public ministry He was often the guest of honor in the home of the people. His presence as an invited guest at the marriage in the village of Cana shows that He participated in the joys of a social occasion, as well as sympathized in times of sorrow and bereavement. He was not too religious to be sociable.

But the presence of Jesus upon a social occasion meant more than a personal enjoyment of the pleasures of the hour. He was sociable rather than social. It was His purpose to give rather than to receive, for He said upon one occasion that He came not to be ministered unto, but to minister. Self-interest or personal pleasure never seemed to influence His conduct, but how unlike Him are many of His professed followers. Even in the houses of prayer many professed Christians seem to forget that there is a social element in the religion of Christ and that the true spirit of Christianity is to give joy to others rather than receive from them.

At the marriage in Cana the presence of Jesus wrought a great change in one of the social customs of the occasion. This significant incident suggests that if Christ were an invited guest at all the social affairs in which Christians participate there might be many and great changes, not to say revolutions, in the social customs of today.

A lady once asked me if a Christian should attend whist and euchre parties, and the reply was that if they opened the games with a prayer and asked Jesus Christ to take a hand in the game, a Christian might consistently attend and participate. But if Christ were invited, and should make Himself known as at many modern social affairs, many of which are held under the auspices of some church society, His presence would be the signal for a radical change of program "without further notice."

THINGS WORTH KNOWING ABOUT TEMPTATIONS

The Rev. Dr. Stanton Tells of the Advantages Gained in Opportunity for Expression of Courage.

"Some Things Worth Knowing About Temptations," was the subject of the sermon delivered before the congregation of the Shady Avenue Baptist church last evening by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. W. A. Stanton. The speaker dwelt upon the responsibilities placed by temptations, giving those tempted opportunity to show moral courage and forbearance, and said in part:

A temptation is a proving, testing, trying. It proves that the one tempted is strong or weak, good or bad, with or without character, in the direction of the temptation. Without it no one may venture to affirm what he would do under the particular circumstances. Any circumstance where there is a choice between good and evil presents the possibility of a temptation. But let it always be remembered that the sin is not in being tempted, but in yielding.

There are at least four stages in every temptation—the outward situation with its appeal, the inward desire or lack of it, the decision of the will as to the appeal, the decisive act in harmony with the will.

Was Christ's wilderness temptation genuine, or was it merely acted? Was it a temptation it was genuine; that Christ passed through the above four stages of experience. But it was without sin for Christ. The tempter found nothing in Christ responding to the appeal and leading to an overt act of sin. That fact, however, in no way invalidated the reality of the temptation. He was tempted in all points as we are, but without sin. This brings us to the conclusion that the result of all temptations depends chiefly upon the subjective conditions of the one tempted, rather than upon the objective conditions of the temptation.

The comprehensiveness of Christ's temptations is remarkable. The first temptation was an appeal to His sensuous, the second to His esthetic and the third to His intellectual nature. Can men have any temptation that does not appeal to one or more of those three elements of human nature? I can think of no temptation that may not be classified under one or the other of those three—the sensuous, the esthetic, the intellectual. Viewed from this standpoint we see that Christ's wilderness experience brought under the power of temptation His whole human nature. The test, therefore, was real, honest, comprehensive, and, in its results, satisfactory to God and man.

It brought Christ into fellowship with man in his temptations, and convinces man that, in like circumstances, he is understood by and has the sympathy of Christ to the uttermost. It is worth while to have such a helper and Saviour. To the tempted there is no Bible promise that means so much as this one: "God will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able, but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it." God makes the way to escape, beloved, but it is our bounden duty to find and use it. Failing there, we too often fall.

THE FATHERHOOD OF GOD DEFINED BY RABBI LEVY

Moral Obligations Expressed by Accepted Term of Relationship of the Deity to Man.

The Rev. Dr. J. Leonard Levy chose as his subject for the Sunday lecture before the Reform Congregation Rodeph Shalom, in the Eighth Street temple yesterday morning, "The Fatherhood of God." He defined this accepted relationship of the Deity to mankind and said in part:

The history of the human family shows man has progressed above the brute because of divine ability to worship. Far from worship being the source of the enslavement of man's soul, it is the evidence of aspiration and is at the base of his upliftment. In the history of the human family we find men recognizing law in the universe. In the upbuilding of society he has applied statutory law to produce conditions among men similar to those which natural law has produced in the universe. But higher than either natural or statutory law, man recognizes the moral law.

As man began to appreciate the fact that moral law is the highest law, so the prophets of the human family began to teach that the cause of the universe was a moral God, a God of holiness, to be worshiped in the beauty of holiness. In order that men might make clear to each other the ideals welling up in their consciousness, they have been endowered with the power of speech, and it is impossible for us to dream long over any condition or ideal without seeking to give it expression. In this way we apply terms to that which is clear to our mental consciousness. These terms are frequently subject to misconstruction, and I feel myself conservative when I state that more bitter and unrelenting persecution has been visited upon innocent people because of human terminology than from any other cause. It did not, therefore, take men long to apply names to God, the most beautiful of which is undoubtedly the term "Father."

To me even so endearing a term as Father applied to God can only be so applied in the most symbolic or abstract sense. To define God by any term is, in my judgment, to deny God. For a God defined is a God dented. We cannot, with our limited and finite intelligence, speak of God as though He were a man, and when we apply to Him even so lovable a name as Father we must always remember that it is an anthropomorphism. If God is the Father of all men let us be willing to accept the consequence of such a doctrine, and by "doing justice, loving mercy and walking humbly with Him," let us show that our faith is not vain.

The New $30,000 Edifice Is Dedicated at Greenville — Pittsburgh Minister Preached.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

GREENVILLE, Jan. 22.—The new $30,000 edifice erected by the congregation of the First Presbyterian church was dedicated this morning with impressive services. The Rev. Dr. James D. Moffett, president of Washington and Jefferson college, preached the dedicatory sermon. The pastor, the Rev. Dr. Charles B. Wakfield, announced that the building committee had funds in hand to pay for the building, and that the congregation had no indebtedness. The evening sermon was delivered by the Rev. J. E. Wright of Pittsburgh, pastor of the congregation here from 1869 to 1874. At the close of the sermon 40 persons joined the church, after which communion was administered.

The new church is of the Romanesque type and is built of native blue stone with cut white stone trimmings. The auditorium has a seating capacity of 500. The present pastor was installed June 22, 1887. In the 80 years of its existence the church has had but 10 pastors.

TROUBLE ARISES FOR AMALGAMATED

Whitaker Tin Mills Will Close, Charging Favors Shown Corporation Plants.

EMPLOYES WITH THE COMPANY

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

WHEELING, W. VA., Jan. 23.—The nominal discharge of all the employes of the Whitaker tin mills Saturday night has precipitated a crisis in the affairs of the Amalgamated association that may lead to the disruption of that organization. The Whitaker is an independent mill operated under the rule of the Amalgamated fixing the limit of output. The management contended that the violation of this rule under the sanction of President Shaffer in United States Steel Corporation mills has been a discrimination not only unjust but ruinous.

The matter was brought to an issue last week through the instance of the Whitaker management and a meeting of the executive board of district No. 2 of the Amalgamated was called for Thursday, but President Shaffer failed to appear. Leading members of Crescent lodge freely admit the justice of the contention of the Whitaker management, and will be equally insistent upon a general adherence to the rule of its abrogation.

A year ago the president of the Amalgamated assumed the authority to dispense with the limit of production rule when the Canton mills were opened. This was but the entering wedge, and the same privilege has been extended to other Steel Corporation mills, Shaffer justifying his course on the ground that local conditions vary. Among the mills disregarding the limit of production rule are the La Belle in this city and the Laughlin in Martins Ferry, both Steel Corporation plants.

For the purpose of bringing the matter before the Amalgamated association and forcing a condition which will equalize trade conditions and abolish the apparent discrimination against independent manufacturers, Crescent lodge has filed formal charges against the two lodges of workmen in the La Belle and Laughlin plants.

Whitaker tin mill employes assert that under the limit of production rule the product of tin sheets should not exceed 7,800 pounds for each turn of eight hours, whereas in the La Belle and Laughlin plants the product has run as high as 9,000 pounds. Pending an adjustment the Whitaker mill will be idle. The management has never made an attempt to operate the plant with non-union workmen, and the employes are so loyal to the mill that it is probable they would withdraw from the Amalgamated association rather than longer submit to what they regard as a discrimination against the Whitaker mill.

The book-keeper's occupation renders him specially liable to stomach trouble. The hasty breakfast, the "quick lunch," the long hours spent in stooping over journal and ledger, with lack of exercise, all tend to the derangement of the stomach.

When the stomach is in a healthy condition the feeling after a meal is one of satisfaction and comfort. Whenever there is discomfort after eating it is a sign of stomach derangement or disease.

Dr Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition perfectly and permanently. The cures effected by this medicine are almost countless.

"I have taken one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for indigestion and liver complaint," writes Mr. A. Wilson, of Vadin, College, Davidson Co., N. C. "Have had no bad spells since I commenced taking your medicine—in fact have not felt like the same man. Before I took the 'Golden Medical Discovery' I could not eat anything without awful distress, but now I can eat anything I wish without having unpleasant feelings."

Don't be fooled into trading a substance for a shadow. Any substitute offered as "just as good" as "Golden Medical Discovery" is a shadow of that medicine. There are cures behind every claim made for the "Discovery," which no "just as good" medicine can show.

HOME JOURNAL SECTION IS PRIZED BY THE WOMEN

This Special Feature of The Sunday Gazette Is Particulary Pleasing to Female Readers.

Interest of women readers is largely centered around the Home Journal section which is issued in conjunction with The Gazette every Sunday. The opinion has been reached and given publicity that a more valuable accessory to the household is not available at this time. There are household hints that are invaluable, but the useful features are but a portion of the value of the publication. The Home Journal section is entertaining. It is made up of the thousand and one bright and attractive things which delight the female heart. In its preparation this one main thought is borne in mind. "The Housewives' Reciprocity Bureau." "An Exchange of Ideas," "The Latest Note of Fashion," "Beatrix Lee's Counsel," and the other special features furnish just the kind of reading that a woman likes. Another jingling poem is presented this week, the batteries of which are directed toward the patrician heights of Squirrel Hill. Roberta V. Bradshaw's tales of social life at Washington bring the smart set of the nation's capital right to your own fireside. Indeed the entire number is one of journalistic worth and worthy of preservation.

The news features of The Sunday Gazette were of a varied nature. The troubles which have beset the land of the czar are of absorbing interest. With the Japanese holding the upper hand in Manchuria, and with internal strife at home, the crown of Russia certainly sets on a troubled brow. Saturday was a fateful day for the unhappy ruler, and the predictions of bloodshed in the streets of St. Petersburg are borne out by this morning's news. Many industrial plants have been closed by the strikers. An arrangement has been reached whereby the United States takes charge of the customs administration of Santo Domingo.

New York policemen are said to be raising a big "boodle fund" with which to combat reform legislation. Frank Croker, a son of Richard Croker, the ex-Tammany leader, was seriously injured in an automobile accident in Florida, and his chauffeur killed. The Metropolitan opera company in New York nearly collapsed at the sight of a member of the chorus hanging dead behind the scenes. Gov. Adams of Colorado, in answer to the complaint of ex-Gov. Peabody, made sweeping charges of fraud against the Republican party. Thirty wealthy westerners will form a cowboy contingent as an escort of honor to the president in the inaugural parade. Victims of Yaqui Indians in Mexico are now known to number five, which includes two Americans. The state of Kansas presented a statue of the late John J. Ingalls to the government, and the dead statesman was eulogized in the halls of congress. William J. Bryan called on President Roosevelt at the White House and was most graciously received. On the witness stand Senator Smoot declared he believes in revelations from God. The Hepburn bill, which provides for government regulation of railroad rates, and which has the approval of the president, was introduced into congress. An express package en route from Washington to New Castle was robbed of $5,650, and it is believed the money was stolen in Pittsburgh. It has been authoritatively announced that there will be no strike among the employes of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

John C. Haymaker returned from the south and at once re-entered the graft crusade in Allegheny. The rivers and harbors committee of congress will be royally entertained by local rivermen when it pays a visit to this vicinity. Chairman Helmold announced that the last secret session of the sub-committee on appropriations will be held today. Eugene Ingold, a juror, had to explain to the court why he called up by telephone an attorney interested in the case. The United States circuit court of appeals, in reversing the lower court, decided that a dredge boat is not navigable. The Allegheny County Bar association took steps to have two attorneys disbarred. Many libels in divorce were filed for consideration at the April term. Preparations were completed for the annual dinner and installation of officers of the Duquesne Greys. A change is likely to be made in the Greater Pittsburgh bill. The candidates of the Republican organization in Allegheny were all successful. Recorder O'Neil was badly beaten in the Republican primaries in McKeesport. Clymer, the Buffalo outfielder, has been secured for the Pirates from Philadelphia. The Winkinsburg High school team won from Allegheny in a fast interscholastic hockey game by a score of 3 to 1. The Western University of Pennsylvania basketball team was beaten in a hot contest on the South Side floor, the score being 25 to 22. John Davidson, champion fancy skater of the world, is coming to Pittsburgh to give exhibitions.

The New York bank statements contained a great surprise for the street in the increase of nearly $34,500,000 in loans. Cash reserves increased nearly $10,500,000, but surplus reserves decreased. Stock markets were dull and irregular. Wheat declined one cent net.

Special Matinee—"Babes in Toyland."

The Nixon theater will give its second special price matinee Wednesday, the attraction being the delightful musical comedy by Victor Herbert and Glen MacDonough, "Babes in Toyland."

Manager Kirk intends to make a feature of these matinees every Wednesday until the end of the season, except for Grand opera week.

Students Received by the Pope.

ROME, Jan. 22.—Pope Pius X. today received the students of the American college at Rome, who were presented by Rector Kennedy. The pope congratulated his visitors upon the splendid results of their examinations, saying that Americans took the palm among the colleges of Rome and are an honor to their country. He gave each student a silver medal.

St. Louis Had Rough Passage.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—The American line steamer St. Louis arrived at her dock today, one day late, after a very rough passage. Edward Grunwaldt was one of her passengers. He came here to take charge of the Russian exhibit that was at the St. Louis fair and ship it back to Russia.

OIL CITY—River 2 feet 6 inches and falling. Weather clear and colder.

PARKERSBURG—River 7 feet and falling. Weather cloudy and cold. The Bessie Smith arrived from Wheeling and returned at 5 p. m.

The stage of water at Davis Island dam at 9 o'clock last night was 5.9 feet and the river was stationary.

RIVERMEN EXPECT RISE IF TEMPERATURE PERMITS

Rivermen are holding themselves in readiness for an early rise in the rivers, which will be made possible by the return of warmer weather within the next few days. In the neighborhood of six feet were registered at the marks at Davis Island dam during yesterday, and with this as a starter a slight rise would make a coal shipment possible. The Rival went down the river yesterday morning after a tow of empties, while the Volunteer and Valiant came in last night each with a string of empty barges.

CRIME OF THE PRESENT GOVERNMENT OF RUSSIA

Pastor S. Edward Young Tells His Bijou Audience That Revolution Is Bound to Come.

To an audience of 3,000 persons in the Bijou theater yesterday afternoon the Rev. S. Edward Young spoke of the crisis in Russia. Mr. Young recently traveled through that country, and is a subscriber to several Russian newspapers. Mr. Young said:

Heaven pity poor Russia! Not the aristocratic few who have constituted themselves into an oligarchy to rule the empire; not the czar, whose throne sits on a volcano; but the 130,000,000 of ill-assimilated, over-burdened subjects. For 200 years Russia's soldiers have trampled the common folk till submission is worse than death, imprisonment or Siberia. Revolution is bound to come—bloody or bloodless, according to the folly or wisdom of the czar. Every man of his predecessors has been who quarreled with their nobility and soon afterward found themselves in the next world—strangled, poisoned, assassinated.

Is there a country under the bended sky wherein you so seldom hear a hearty laugh? Enter from jolly Germany at Alexandrovo and you meet silence like the cemetery's, suspicion and dread. No, ye autocrats, humanity will not stay crushed forever. It will rise, though you mount two gendarmes, instead of one, on every laborer. Those hundreds of thousands of striking workmen who propose to petition the czar in person today represent the most multi-throated cry for liberty this world has heard in many a generation. They speak for about one-twelfth of the human race, all ground under oppression's iron heel. On their side seem to stand not a few of the nobility and the majority of the educated classes. The procurator of the holy synod, Pobiedonestseff, and Father Gopon, leader of the strikers, epitomize in their persons the fight that is tearing Russia asunder faster far than are the armies of the Japanese.

Surely the present Russian government deserves to die. Its crime is its throttling of the people's yearnings.

HESITATION IS PROMISED IN WALL STREET MARKET

Irregularity Will Be the Inheritance of the Past Week of Unhealthy Movements—Russian Uprising May Become a Factor.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Unless the customary signs should fail the security market of the week will be one of hesitation and pronounced irregularity. In part this will be the inheritance from last week's feverish and unhealthy market, with its fictitious movements, simulated activity and machine-made advances. This inheritance is but one factor, however. New elements have entered into the situation, the influence of which is as yet unknown. Until the effects of the outbreak in St. Petersburg on the continental markets may be gauged to some degree the situation presented by the workmen's riot or the political revolution in the Russian capital is an event calculated to inspire caution. He would be a prophet, indeed, who could predict with accuracy the effects of such an outbreak as that of yesterday on the world's great markets.

It is not as an alarmist that attention is called to a possibility such as the above. Whatever it should turn out, riot or revolution, real values of American securities will not be injured, though their present selling prices might undergo some readjustment, measured by the extent of the foreign selling and the absorbing power of American investors and speculators. The entire matter would work through the money market. Recalls of foreign capital and sales of securities by the continent in London would doubtless be followed locally by advancing exchange and by gold shipment of coin.

Then would come the automatic check of gold exports, through an advance of local money rates. That alternating operation might be repeated for some time, influencing very high exchange and very considerable gold shipment. That would depend entirely upon the extent of unsettlement abroad.

The above is of course hypothetical. Nothing of the kind may happen, and there is another possibility by no means unfavorable. The Russian internal dissensions make for peace between Russia and Japan. The determination of the former country to prosecute the war in the far east to wipe out if possible the humiliating memories of the fall of Port Arthur is well known. Since the successful flotation of the Russian loan in Germany the means seemed at hand for a prolongation of the war. But it is self-evident that if the internal difficulties of Russia assume a phase as alarming as is indicated by some extreme reports the days of the war with Japan are numbered and peace is drawn within a reasonable distance of accomplishment. It would be wholly impossible for the country, great as are her natural resources, to continue a ruinous war without it beset by a revolution at home.

Some very far-sighted bankers hold that the St. Petersburg uprising indicates one of two extremes, either a constitutional government for Russia, granted, without more serious disturbances, by the czar, or a revolution which would bring about the same end. It would be a dear price to pay for a constitutional government, should this be brought about by a revolution, yet the people of many countries have paid the price before now, and the future generations have not in the end thought it too high for the benefits obtained. But this question concerns the far future and deals with a subject not directly associated with the immediate security markets. Of these it can only be said that the St. Petersburg incident is fraught with great possibilities to all the financial markets of the world, and that until its influence may be better gauged it certainly makes for extreme conservatism on the part of those having speculative commitments in securities.

Of the stock market of the past week little need be said. There were some highly favorable developments in the way of increased dividend payments, in the stoppage of the ruinous textile strike at Fall River, and the satisfactory reports of general business. The best feature of the entire situation was the continued healthy demand for bonds and investments, in political quarters progress was made in the direction of a railway rate bill, and discussions continued, though much less forcefully, of the possibility of tariff revision at an extra session in the autumn. Of the specific movements in stocks, these were highly irregular, with some surprising advances and some disappointing heaviness. The absence of public interest was most marked, and some of the furious upbidding of prices was decidedly suspicious. The market as a whole presented little that was illuminating. The one of this week is likely to be more interesting.

OPERATORS ARE WATCHING LONGFELLOW & CO.'S WELL

Interest in the developments in the lower southwest fields during the past week was at a low ebb. The discoveries in all districts were of such a nature as to cause little comment. Probably the point watched with most interest was the new discovery in the Macksburg field, Washington county, O. When Longfellow & Co. drilled their test on the Longfellow farm into the Gordon formation some three weeks ago and got a show of oil a new feature was introduced on that side of the river. In the past an occasional test had been drilled to the lower sand, but this is the first to find production in anything like paying quantities. During the week the Longfellow well was drilled about 14 feet into the sand, but it was not determined whether or not the production had been increased from what it showed when first drilled in. The well flows by heads at irregular intervals, and is producing about 50 barrels a day. When drilling was discontinued, they were still in a dark sand formation containing traces of slate.

Without regard to anything but the showing made by this well, the demand for leases in that locality has been very strong and operators have not hesitated to put up liberal bonus money to secure territory. As to what future developments may bring forth there is nothing on which to base an opinion. The well that has caused all of the commotion may be purely a freak, or it may be the beginning of what may load up to a Gordon pool on the Ohio side. When the well was first drilled into the pay and began to show oil the owners decided to take no chances on drilling it deeper until they had secured desirable leases in the vicinity. Having been successful, there will be no further secrecy maintained and the well will be put to pumping. The gas pressure is not strong and the well, if it has anything back of it, should increase its production. It is thought that it will make a 50-barrel producer, and if it shows satisfactory staying qualities there will be no delay in starting new work.

In the new 30-foot district, west of Mannington, Marion county, West Virginia, the developments promised for last week failed to materialize. Of a number of wells due, but one, the South Penn Oil Company's No. 3 on the J. L. Beatty farm, got the sand. This well is in southwest of developments and has been drilled into the 30-foot deeper than the pay was found in the other wells and is showing for a light producer. If one is to judge of the future developments by the recent completions in this development, it looks as though the best of the pool had been developed. The old wells are still declining, and some would now be in the pumper list if they had not been shot one or more times. When given a dose of the high explosives they respond for a time with an increased production, but the time is approaching when all will have to be put to pumping. About 25 wells are drilling in the district and but a small amount of new work starting. After the work now under way shall have been completed it will probably show the outside limits of the pool's producing limits.

There was nothing in the developments of the week in other deep sand districts to commend attention or furnish an incentive for more aggressive operations. In fact, the size of the wells would seem to indicate that just the reverse would be the safer policy at this time. Drilling for five and ten-barrel wells in the deep sand territories is not a good investment, even though there would be no risk to run from getting dry holes. The only well that has stimulated new work in the deep sand territory within the past month is the Industrial Oil Company's good producer on the Girls' Industrial home property, Harrison county. This test when drilled in started at about 150 barrels a day and is still holding up at about 80 barrels. A number of wells are starting and locations have been made for others.

In the Wick pool, Tyler county, the Carter Oil Company secured the best shallow sand producer of the week when it drilled in its No. 3 on the Watson farm and got a producer that placed 400 barrels to its credit the first 24 hours. Along the eastern edge of the county some new work was completed, but resulted in small pumpers and dry holes.

Ritchie, Pleasants and Wood counties have utterly failed to introduce a new attraction for sensationals. The efforts made to extend the old fields have resulted in failure and there is little interior work starting. The Yellow Creek district, Calhoun county, is still the most active shallow sand development, and the wells completed during the week were all producers of about the late average in that district.

Aside from the Longfellow Gordon sand well, previously mentioned, development on the Ohio side during the past week was very tame. Light wells were the rule in all districts. In the Rays Run district, Washington county, there is some test work starting along the Ohio river. Near Woodsfield, Monroe county, the Imperial Oil and Gas Company's two wells on the Catherine Block heirs' farm are holding up very creditably and have been the incentive for starting some new work in that locality. At Amsterdam, Jefferson county, the well on the George Minor farm is a remarkably good producer in its staying qualities. This well was drilled in two weeks ago, and is holding up very regularly, flowing at the rate of 100 barrels a day. But for two small wells, one on either side of it, the size and staying qualities of this one would lead to the conclusion that a new pool had been discovered. Some new work is starting in advance, and it will be of some interest to note whether or not the new ventures will be in the same class.

Back of Beaver Falls, Beaver county, is a little development that is growing in interest. Some very nice producers have been recently completed in that district. During the week two new wells were drilled in and estimated to be good for 30 barrels a day each.

In the Fallen Timber Run district, Wetzel county, W. Va., A. W. T. A., E. P. and R. B. Mellon have sold their entire holdings to the Parker-Edwards Oil Company. The property consists of leases on a number of farms, 550 acres in all, on which are 14 producing oil wells and one gasser and three completed rigs. The only features of interest to the trade, the amount of production and the consideration, have been withheld from the public. The Parker-Edwards Oil Company, the purchaser, is composed of H. J. Parker, the well-known operator and producer, and W. E. Edwards, formerly with the South Penn Oil Company as field superintendent. The new owners will proceed to develop the property and should have no trouble to increase its production.

WISDOM WAS CARRYING A DANGEROUS WEAPON

Cal Wisdom, colored, was found standing in a dark alley off Wylie avenue Saturday night by Officer F. J. Dauncey. He was carrying a club ornamented with a heavy iron socket, and his appearance indicated trouble for some one. He told Magistrate Stewart yesterday morning that he used the club for breaking coal, but his story was not believed, and he was fined $25 and costs or 30 days to the workhouse. Magistrate Stewart also fined Charles Norris $25 and costs on a charge of stealing a watch from a hotel in Glassport.

REVIEW OF THE WEEK IN THE LOCAL MARKETS

Business Dull in All Lines, the Only Feature Being Attempt to Boom Eggs.

The past week in the local markets has been one of unusual dullness. At no time did trade approach a lively state. One or two days were fairly good, but the volume of business for the week was decidedly off.

The feature of the local situation was the attempt to boost the price of eggs. The cold weather of the preceding couple of weeks had made shipments of fresh eggs difficult. Farmers were unable to get to the depots and the stock was getting low. On the basis of the unfavorable weather the holders of storage stock undertook to create an egg flurry and the price rose a couple of cents. The great plentitude of fresh eggs in the country was well known, however, and there was little demand for the high priced goods. Fresh eggs were quoted as high as 32 cents, but plenty could be had at 30c. Storage eggs tried to get up to a 28-cent figure, but dealers who were heavily stocked were willing to cut a couple of cents under this. The coming of warmer weather ended the flurry. Southern gatherers telegraphed that they were prepared to ship strictly fresh stock by the carload. Upon receipt of this information the prices immediately commenced to ease. None of the southern eggs have come in as yet, but several carloads are expected here the first of next week and these will have the effect of putting prices down to a point where the ordinary householder can afford to use them.

Butter was slow all week, as buyers positively refuse to deal with the high prices now demanded for top. It is believed the butter market is due for a heavy cut. Some dealers believe the Elgin board will endeavor to raise prices again at the meeting today, but it is doubtful if Pittsburgh dealers will be able to follow them.

In the grocery trade the interesting item of the week was sugar. The condition of the raw sugar market was such that it was generally believed there would be another stiff advance last week, but it did not come. Many jobbers think the top in sugar is about at hand. They contend that the big refineries are simply speculating now and that there is no real necessity for such high prices for sugar as they have forced upon the consumers. There is little likelihood of a drop, however, as the refiners have the situation in their own hands, and while they may not be able to force prices any higher, can at least hold them where they are.

Flour was an uncertain quantity all week. Early in the week it looked like a sharp advance. It was not long, however, until it suffered a slight decline and the rest of the week the market was dull. There is no immediate prospect of an advance now and it is believed the flour market is at its high notch for the winter.

HAY AND GRAIN.

Receipts.

The receipts of hay and grain last Saturday were as follows: Pennsylvania lines, 2 cars hay, 4 cars corn, 2 cars oats, 2 cars feed; Pittsburgh & Lake Erie, 6 cars hay, 1 car corn, 2 cars oats and corn; Baltimore & Ohio, 6 cars hay, 3 cars oats.

The situation in the hay and grain market last week was similar to that in all other markets. But little business was transacted. This was offset by light receipts which saved the market from a severe break in prices. At no time did business take on a brisk appearance, although there was a fair trade transacted several days on the floor of the exchange.

Prices dropped a little in car corn and the shelled article. The wet weather of the past week has been hard on corn shipments and corn is arriving damp. This is largely due to carelessness of shippers, and is the principal cause for the decline in price. The market is fair, especially for car corn, which sells as readily as it is received.

The demand for hay has dropped off considerably and the feed market has livened up some. Rye also showed an improvement during the week and the price moved up to 85c and 90c a bushel.

There was a slight improvement over last, but dealers anticipate a rushing business about February 1.

WILL HAVE TWO EASTER SHOWS

The Spring Display of Flowers at Phipps Conservatory to Cover Over Six Weeks.

WILL HAVE EARLY LILIES

The flower shows will be given in the Schenley park conservatory this spring. On account of Easter Sunday falling late in the month of April it will be impossible to hold back all the early bloomers and in order that none shall be sacrificed the regular spring show will open about April 1. The Easter exhibit will be ready on Sunday, April 23.

Superintendent George W. Burke was busy looking up his almanac yesterday, while a big crowd of Sunday sojourners in the park took little tropical excursions through the warm palm houses of the conservatory. The fact that visitors walked through the biting air across Junction bridge and enjoyed the stroll among the palms, ferns and bananas was encouraging to Mr. Burke.

"We shall be justified in holding two shows this spring," he said. "All the lilies cannot be held back until Easter time, and with so many other flowers coming on, we have resolved to open the greenhouses as early as the Holland bulbs shoot up their blooms, and will continue the exhibit until after May 1. This will allow the people to see the glory of the conservatory extending over a period of six weeks.

"The hyacinths, lilies, crocuses, tulips, primroses and the narcissus will be shown in the early show and at Easter time we shall have a greater lily display with callas, lilacs, roses, cinerarias, begonias and orchids. The attendance in former years indicates that six weeks will be none too long a time for the spring display."

Extensive improvements have been planned for the conservatory, and an appropriation of $3,000 will be asked for the renewal of the palm house. New stock will be purchased and the fern banks will be rebuilt. The work will be done about midsummer.

At the Carnegie music hall yesterday afternoon Organist Edwin H. Lemare gave a recital devoted exclusively to compositions of local men. Those represented were Ferrata, Nevin, Zitterbart, Foerster, Steiner, St. Clair, Cadman and Carter. There was a large audience and the hall was crowded until the close of the recital. Each composer seemed to have his own following in the house. Next Sunday Mr. Lemare will make his farewell appearance.

SAYS NORDICA'S HUSBAND SETTLED FOR $125,000

The Secret Brought Out by Servant's Suit Against Herr Doehme.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Allegations are now made that Herr Doehme, former husband of Mme. Nordica, received $125,000 settlement in a suit to recover damages for the alienation of the affections of the grand opera singer. The allegations appear in an affidavit in the suit brought in the supreme court of Queens county, by Mary Wall, for 10 years a maid in the diva's employ, who asks judgment against Herr Doehme of $9,600 with interest and costs. The maid avers that she was to have had $10,000, although she received only $400. The agreement between Miss Wall and Herr Doehme, as set forth in the complaint, was made on February 25, 1904.

Mme. Nordica's decree of divorce obtained from her husband was entered last July, and shortly afterward he went to Paris, where he now is. As he could not be reached by the process served the attorney for the servant notified him by publication.

Miss Wall declares that with a chaperone and detective she made a tour of the United States. She says that on February 24 last she furnished to Herr Doehme, "at his special interest and request, information of value touching on matters at issue between him and his wife and the plaintiff alleges on information and belief that said defendant compromised his suit for the alienation of his wife's affections for the sum of $125,000, while the plaintiff was traveling in the custody of the defendant's 'agents.'"

It is the report that the suit originally brought was for $250,000.

DIOCESAN UNION MET.

Total Abstinence Organization Heard Good Reports from Coke Region.

The Diocesan union of the Catholic Total Abstinence society met yesterday afternoon in St. Thomas' hall, Braddock. The Rev. John G. Beane presided. A. R. Floyd announced the establishment of a chain of total abstinence societies across the coke region.

The Rev. Robert McDonald, the new rector of St. Thomas' parish, pledged earnest support to the movement. The next meeting of the union will be held on February 26, in Corpus Christi lyceum, Lincoln avenue, East End.

Raided Alleged Gambling Joint.

Lieut. Lawrence Bartley and a squad of police early yesterday morning raided the alleged gambling house at 4822 Harrison street, kept by Joseph Golts. Golts was fined $25 and costs and the six visitors arrested in the place $5 and costs, by Magistrate Kane.

Drank Carbolic Acid.

Mrs. Mary Wilson, aged 27, attempted to commit suicide early yesterday morning at her home, 2947 Smallman street, by drinking carbolic acid. She was removed to the West Penn hospital and though badly burned by the drug it is thought she will recover.

Demented Woman Looked Dangerous.

Lieutenant Lawrence Bartley arrested Mrs. Natalia Thorne, a demented woman, at Butler and Thirty-seventh streets yesterday morning. She had a large handy-billy in one hand and said she was waiting for a woman against whom she had a grievance and who was attending mass at St. Augustine's church. Mrs. Thorne lives in Millvale and is the mother of 14 children.

Child Swallowed Belladonna.

Charles, the 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Bickeley of Highland avenue, McKeesport, is in a critical condition from swallowing an ounce and a half of belladonna. The drug had been used as medicine for an elder brother.

Negroes in a Cutting Scrape.

Harry Lee, colored, was slightly cut on the left side Saturday night by another colored man named Orth, during a fight in a pool room at 3215 Penn avenue. Orth escaped but Lee was arrested and locked up and Dr. A. E. McCandless, the city physician, dressed his wound.

Two Speakeasies Were Raided.

Police Captain John Cullen, with Special Policemen W. D. Marsh and Herman Wessell, raided two alleged speakeasies in Oakland yesterday. At the house of Pat Donnelly, 26 Acorn street, the proprietor escaped but five visitors were taken. Mrs. Mary Riley of 20 Kansas street and seven visitors were also arrested.

City Is $30 Ahead.

Martin Mullen of 411 Bingham street was arrested Saturday night. He was accused of being disorderly. He put up a forfeit of $30 and was released. He was absent from the hearing yesterday and the city is that amount ahead.

Three Fighters Are Fined.

Joe Browski and Frank Laska, both of 1812 Clifton street, and John Miller of Pius street were arrested at South Negley ave. and Carson streets for fighting Saturday night. Each was assessed $8.40 costs.

VALUATIONS SAID TO BE INFLATED

City Officials and Sub-Committee Fix Tax Levy on a Verbal Estimate.

IS LESS THAN $400,000,000

In fixing the total valuation of taxable property of the city at $400,000,000 as the basis upon which to figure the tax levy for 1905, it develops that the mayor, the controller and the sub-committee on appropriations are relying upon a verbal estimate from the assessors and not a written estimate, such as the law requires.

The total valuation last year was $393,459,000, and this year it is raised to $400,000,000, making an increase of $6,541,000, which is supposed to be from new buildings started or completed during the past year. There are no figures before the sub-committee on appropriations to show that this increase is justified.

Chairman Helmold says that he has seen no figures except those he obtained himself from the assessors' office nearly a month ago, which estimated that the total valuation would be about $4,000,000 higher than last year. He, however, got no figures by wards.

Mayor Hays says he conferred with a couple of the assessors and they assured him verbally that the increase would reach $6,000,000. Upon this assurance the mayor, the controller and the sub-committee have fixed the increase at just $6,541,000 above last year.

Valuation Reported Excessive.

The information now comes from the assessors' office that the total valuation will not reach $400,000,000 and the figures upon which the sub-committee is working are over-estimated. During the past several weeks many reductions in assessments on new buildings have been made by the assessors upon appeals taken by the property owners and quite a number of exonerations have been granted. This will have the effect of bringing down the total valuation.

An act of assembly of 1897 requires the city assessors to ascertain the aggregate amount of the valuation of the entire taxable property of the city and to certify this valuation properly classified, to the city councils during the month of January. This has not been done and such an estimate is not expected this month. In former years it was the custom of the finance committee and the sub-committee on appropriations not to proceed to fix the tax levy until a written classified estimate by wards of all taxable property had been received from the assessors. This estimate was supposed to be as nearly accurate as it was possible to get it.

Bole Objects to Job.

The sub-committee on appropriations will hold another secret session this afternoon in the mayor's office. Chairman Helmold expects the sub-committee to finish its work today and to hold a public meeting later in the week to ratify the work done in secret. Then the ordinances will be reported to the finance committee and the sub-committee will ask to be discharged.

Mr. Helmold is determined that his task shall end when he reports to the finance committee, and that Chairman Bole of the finance committee shall assume the management of the bills on the floor of common council, where they will meet their first opposition. Chairman Bole is anxious to avoid this, and Councilman Roenigk, who is neither a member of the sub-committee nor the finance committee, will probably be pushed to the front as the principal defender of the measures.

RECTOR BOPE RESIGNS; WILL LEAVE MINISTRY

Former Friends Disposed to View His Conduct With Suspicion.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

ZANESVILLE, O., Jan. 22.—When Archdeacon George Henry Edwards returned to Cincinnati today, he carried with him the resignation of the Rev. Frank W. Bope, as rector of St. James' Episcopal church and as a minister of the Episcopal church.

The sudden termination of the Bope-Gibbs slander suit has brought forth a verdict of guilty from the majority of Bope's former friends. Deserted by most of them and doubted by the others, he is said to have slept in his offices in the rear of the church last night. The vestry of St. James' church has not acted yet, awaiting word from Bishop Boyd Vincent, whom they think will announce the Rev. Mr. Bope's resignation.

Mrs. B. Evelyn Baker, the New York vocalist and authoress, whose manuscript Bope transcribed, arrived here this morning. In an interview she says the love letters which the Rev. Mr. Bope wrote for her were of such a character that she could not use them in the story then being written. She came on here to testify for Bope.

Kicked the Policeman.

While being arrested at Penn avenue and Main street by Special Officers Ford and Page on Saturday night, James Mann of Chestnut street kicked Officer Ford in the stomach. For this he was fined $5 and costs.

Sixty Days for Wife Beater.

John McNally, arrested by Officer John Judge for abusing his wife at their home in Hatfield street, was sentenced 60 days to the workhouse without a fine by Magistrate Kane yesterday.

Foreigners Fined for Gambling.

Mike Salage, Joe Briskish, George Goodnige, Mike Blaskowitz, Barth Marlowitz and Nicholas Speecher were raided at 20 South Thirtieth street for gambling. All, except Speecher, who was discharged, paid $13 40 each yesterday.

ELLIOTT MEMBERS WILL TEST LAW

City Officials Refuse to Treat With the Baby Ward Councilmen.

RULING BY PRESIDENT WARD

Repeated efforts on the part of councilmen from the Thirty-ninth ward, formerly Elliott borough, to have an understanding with the administration regarding the new ward's representation in councils have met with failure. Since the sensational scenes in common council at the last meeting, when that body refused to seat the Thirty-ninth ward members, they have made a number of attempts to reach the mayor and city solicitor.

At first one of the councilmen made an attempt alone to see the mayor, but was unsuccessful. Then the matter was placed in the hands of the former solicitor of Elliott borough, John Rebman, but he failed to get an audience with Mayor Hays. He met City Solicitor Rodgers. According to Councilman Phillips from the Thirty-ninth ward Mr. Rodgers told Attorney Rebman that President Ward of common council would make a ruling on the matter at the next meeting of that body, but it would be Ward's ruling and not the city solicitor's. Rebman failed to ascertain what the ruling would be.

Not satisfied with this, the councilmen from the Thirty-ninth ward waited upon Mayor Hays in a body Friday afternoon. They were compelled to wait several hours until the mayor came out of the secret meeting with the sub-committee on appropriations. The interview with the mayor was short and unsatisfactory.

"I cannot take this matter up," said the mayor, "until we get through with the appropriation bills. I am busy with them."

The councilmen of the Thirty-ninth ward are still in doubt what representation will be allowed them in the city councils, if any. The annexation act of 1903, under which Elliott borough was annexed to Pittsburgh, provides "the members of council of an annexed borough shall be members of common council of the city, and remain until the expiration of the terms for which they were elected, and until their successors are duly qualified under the arrangement of the territory into wards."

The problem that faces the city administration is how can the members from the Elliott borough be admitted to membership in common council, as the act of 1903 plainly provides, and not be given the full rights of members, which includes a vote and voice in all matters considered in that body.

The Citizens councilmen object to giving a full vote to each of the six councilmen from the former borough, but they recognize that it would be difficult if the Thirty-ninth ward members were sworn in as members to deprive any one of a vote. The Thirty-ninth ward members have decided to wait for President Ward's ruling, and if it is not satisfactory, the matter will be taken to court to have the law legally construed, because the same question is bound to arise when other territory is annexed to Pittsburgh.

ENGINES MET ON CURVE; FOUR TRAINMEN KILLED

Two Others May Die from Injuries in Head-On Collision in Tennessee.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

MIDDLESBORO, KY., Jan. 22.—A head-on collision between two freight trains, one a double-header on the Louisville & Nashville railroad at Shawnee, Tenn., today resulted in the death of four railroad men and the injury of four others, two of whom may die.

The dead are: James Klutz, fireman; George Mooney, engineer; Will Harris, fireman; Brakeman Laughley. Those believed to be fatally injured are: William Terry, engineer; Will Kilfiker, conductor; L. P. Larue, engineer. The seriously injured are Fory Oakley, flagman; Lon Sprinkler, fireman; Brakeman Stotser.

The south bound train should have met the north bound, which was a double-header, at Wheelver, Va. The trains met 300 yards east of the station at Shawnee, at an angle of a slight curve, and came together with terrific force. All three engines were completely demolished and Fireman Klutz, Engineer Mooney, Fireman Harris and Brakeman Laughley were buried under the wreck. The north bound train was composed of 25 cars, seven of which were completely demolished.

A. M. E. BISHOPS VINDICATE DR. LEE AND HIS FLOCK

Council at Hot Springs Declared Secessionists' Action Was Justifiable.

The Rev. Dr. J. M. Lee and those of his congregation who left Bethel A. M. E. church last fall have been given unqualified vindication by the council of bishops in session at Hot Springs, Ark. The matter will now be left to an amicable settlement within the jurisdiction of the Pittsburgh conference. This will be done by the establishment of a new church or by a declaration of peace in the Bethel congregation. It is more likely, however, that a new church will be formed.

The decision of the council means a defeat to Bishop W. B. Derrick of Pittsburgh and to those members of Bethel who endeavored to have their former pastor and his adherents expelled from the church. A searching examination into the archives of the church will be made and a general overhauling of the congregation's troubles will follow.

Thirteen bishops, representing all the districts in the United States, attended the council, which opened its sessions on Thursday. Dr. Lee and two members of his congregation attended. Bishop H. M. Turner, senior member of the council, presided, and heard Dr. Lee's request for an investigation of the Pittsburgh controversy. Some time was spent in taking testimony and the decision was soon made. The majority was a unit in exonerating Dr. Lee of all blame. The council closed its meeting yesterday and the local contingent will return to Pittsburgh this week.

Time Schedule for "Parsifal."

The idea of dividing the performance of "Parsifal" into two sections, which system will be followed by Savage's company at the Nixon theater next week, originated with Wagner himself. The first act in the matinee performances will begin at 11:30 and there will be an intermission from 1:15 to 2:15 for luncheon. The advance sale opens Thursday morning.

MAKES YOU ACHE ALL OVER

Ache all over? Feverish? Chilly? Just coming down with a hard cold? Where do you suppose it will settle?

In the throat? That means hoarseness, sore throat, tonsillitis. In the chest? Then bronchitis, pneumonia, consumption.

Do not let your cold settle. Break it up! Drive it out! Ask your doctor the best medicine for this. If he says Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, take it at once. If he has anything better, take that.
